

What Will They Do With Leftovers?

OTTAWA (Special)—Comment-of-the-capital-week:

Forces of Regionalism New Threat for Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—Confederation is threatened by contemporary forces of regionalism that go beyond Canada's French Fact, Quebec's federal Liberals were told Friday.

Prof. Gerald Ferdin, sociologist at Laval University, told a thinkers' conference sponsored by the Liberals that there is a worldwide trend to regionalism. He said the federal government should take care to act through the provinces in dealing with regional issues or risk destroying Canada. (See also Page 2).

"Regionalism is a new manifestation of democratic values and involves a re-assessment of all forms of government, including Canadian federalism. 'It is the affirmation of citizens' wish for collective control over their own affairs.'"

Nothing was less certain in this new context than Confederation and it would have to be remade "even without the presence of the French Fact in Canada."

OLD VESSEL

"Confederation is an old vessel that is being broken apart by the new wave of planning and democracy of participation."

The solution was neither greater centralization of federal powers nor greater autonomy for the provinces, but a new balance of power.

The balance should be between federal, provincial and regional government involving a central government, possibly run directly by the provinces.

The central government should deal only with provincial governments which would in turn have relations with regional government.

Newfoundland Rockburst

Body Found, Two Hunted

ST. LAWRENCE, Nfld. (CP)—Searchers digging through rubble 500 feet below the surface of the Newfoundland Fluorapatite Co. mine here Friday night recovered the body of one of three Fluorapatite miners killed in a rockburst earlier in the day.

The company said the body of Noel Warren, 24, was recovered and that the search for the other bodies would continue. Mine manager Rupert Wilman said the three were believed killed about 1:30 a.m. in a "work room" about half-way down the 1,000-foot mine, when up to 1,000 tons of rock crashed down on the area.

"We don't hold any hope that any of them are alive," Mr. Wilmman said.

The other two missing men are Robert Williams, 35, a foreman, and John Sherry, 23. All were married, with a total of 18 children.

Faced Army Plot Questions

Nasser's Deputy Kills Self

CAIRO (UPI)—Former Egyptian vice-president Abdul Hakim Amer committed suicide by poison rather than face questioning about an alleged army plot against President Nasser. It was officially announced here Friday.

The 48-year-old former deputy commander of Egyptian armed forces, disgraced

after the Arab war with Israel, had been under house arrest for alleged complicity in the plot.

An official spokesman said Amer swallowed "a quantity of poisonous narcotic matter" when army officers came to his house Wednesday to "invite him to attend the investigation" of the alleged plot.

He was rushed to a hospital where his condition began to improve, but he took another fatal dose of poison which he had apparently brought with him, the spokesman said.

Amer had been Nasser's friend since boyhood, and he was the president's heir-apparent under the Egyptian constitution.

Radio Cairo said the commander in chief and chief of staff of the armed forces went to Amer's house to question him about the plot Wednesday. It said Amer excused himself and went into the bathroom, where he swallowed the first dose of pills.

Amer was rushed to a hospital, his stomach was pumped out and his condition improved Thursday, the radio said. Then he suffered a sudden relapse and died after visiting the bathroom, where he had evidently taken more pills, according to a medical examination.

Women, Children Leave Skagway

SKAGWAY (AP)—Women and children were evacuated Friday as the weather bureau warned this historic southeast Alaska town to brace itself for the possibility of its worst flood in history.

Only a soaking earlier dille kept the wild, rain-swollen Skagway River from sweeping out of its narrow mountain valley and through the community of 800 persons.

Mayor Edward C. Hanousek said the river, swollen to near record levels by more than three inches of rain in the last 48 hours, was rising at the rate of seven inches an hour.

However, the rain later stopped and the rapid rise eased. Water from the backing dike flooded some basements early in the day and a bridge linking the town with the west bank of the river was washed out.

If the backing dike should give way, officials said the force of a resulting flash flood could wash most of the town into Talia Lake, a glacier-googed, hard-to-reach waterway linking the mountainous area with the North Pacific.

Hanousek said he ordered all women and children to take refuge in the Skagway School, a two-story concrete structure on high ground, while men fought emergency crews to work on the dike.

The Haines Highway, linking southeast Alaska with the main Alaska Highway, was cut at four places by slides and high water. At least one bridge was reported out.

Court for Cart

Mistaken Motorist Went Around Law

CLAREMONT, Calif. (UPI)—There was this little old lady in the three-wheeled, automatic cart putting down the high speed San Bernardino freeway the wrong way.

And then there was John Law, California Highway patrolman John E. Law, that is.

Law said he spotted the 61-year-old woman Thursday as she buzzed eastbound along the narrow center divider of the westbound freeway lanes. He turned the red lights atop his squad car on and stopped it in front of the cart, similar to a golf cart.

Its operator, Mrs. Ella Docker of Claremont, calmly put out her left arm, signalled for a turn and detoured around the squad car blocking her path.

The supposed patrolman took off after the cart on foot and finally succeeded in halting it, but not before one minor accident occurred as motorists tried to dodge the cart.

Law said the elderly woman told him she was hurrying to a doctor and had turned onto the freeway by mistake.

Law said he didn't know if she made it to her doctor's appointment but now she has another appointment—in municipal court on a citation charging her with driving in the wrong lanes of a freeway and with illegally operating an electric cart on the freeway.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (UPI)

—The outer winds of Doria, a hurricane that defied the paths of all its known predecessors, slammed inland early today with winds gusting up to 120 miles an hour.

"It's coming right at us," police chief Jack Phillips said. The U.S. weather bureau said Doria was the first hurricane ever to move inland along the coast of the mid-Atlantic states.

Thousands along the populous east coast fled before the storm that kicked up sides of four to six feet above normal and set off flooding.

Doria was one of two hurricanes to menace the coastline early today.

The other was Beulah, an established killer packing 115 miles an hour winds while heading toward Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

EVACUATION ORDERED

But Beulah, which already had claimed 18 lives in a sweep through the Leeward Islands and Haiti in the Caribbean, wasn't expected to hit any sooner than this afternoon.

Mayor Hugh Cropper ordered the evacuation of the entire population of Ocean City, a resort that swells to more than 100,000 during the tourist season but dwindles to but about 2,000 after Labor Day.

Phillips said about 70 per cent of the population had been evacuated by early today.

Survivors Want Share

ABERFAN (UPI)—A bitter and sad dispute broke into the open Friday over the wealth which poured into this tiny Welsh village following an October, 1966, coal tip disaster that killed 116 schoolchildren.

The avalanche of coal waste that thundered on to the village schoolhouse was followed by an avalanche of money sent by sympathizers around the world.

Parents of the 64 children who survived the disaster said they, too, should get a share of the $4,700,000 disaster fund, much of which will be parcelled out to families who lost a child.

The parents said many of the surviving children were injured in the landslide and others suffered nervous disorders.

Earlier this week, the secretary treasurer of the disaster fund, Gerald Davis announced that every family bereaved by the disaster would receive a $14,000 payment.

"Frankly, I see little prospect that every child at school on the morning of the disaster being given substantial sums," Davis said. "Where would it end?"

More than $500,000 was paid out of the fund immediately after the disaster, some of it to bereaved families and some for emergency town spending.

No decision has been taken on the more than $1,500,000 that will remain in the fund after all payments have been made.

"We want to end the blockading in this town," said steelworker Michael Maybank, 28. "But we want a share of the money for our children."

Maybank said he thought the surviving children should receive an immediate payment of $5,000 with another $3,400 put in trust until they reach the age of 21.

Report on Faculty Speaks Volumes

NOT SO JUICY: Anyone looking for scandal in the report on hiring and firing at the University of Victoria is in for a big disappointment.

Four members of the faculty — M. H. Scargill, R. E. Watson, J. E. McInerney and W. R. Gordon spent the summer interviewing staff and students.

The report, almost two inches thick in its duplicated letterized format, has been sent to all faculty members by university president Malcolm Taylor.

Dr. Taylor has asked that "the report's contents be regarded as confidential until a full discussion by faculty has taken place."

The report went into action after the Schwartz-Tarleton affair and has been digging deep into the modes and manners of staffing the university.

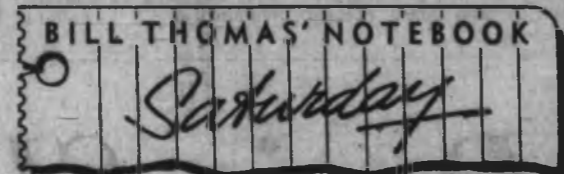

Those who care to wade knee-deep through the sea of words will become aware that the report reads more like the Queens Rules and Regulations for serving officers than Fanny Hill.

If the report is adopted then there may be student representation on the university senate in the near future.

The fee revolt and the sit-in student politics back so far as the administration is concerned. Four years ago the University of Victoria's students enjoyed more autonomy in running their affairs than most schools in Canada.

To head up the report there are a full complement of appendices and table.

These cover the Universities Act and a statement of professional ethics. All in all a rather dull volume for the lay reader but it is certain to fire some debate when the faculty get their chance Sept. 26.

There will, no doubt, be those of the staff who would like to see selection and appraisal committees with a different make-up than that suggested in the report.

It remains to be seen if the report will be adopted but that would seem to be what Dr. Taylor expects.

MUSIC PREVIEW: Young artists considering entry in the next Victoria Music Festival will get a chance to look over the test pieces Sept. 30 and 31.

For the first time festival organizers will put the music and speech arts pieces on view. The showing will be in the Victoria Room at Eaton's.

KOOKY COUNCIL: If Banting theatre is having trouble with the Canada Council they should compare notes with the Maritime Museum.

The museum sent a letter to the council explaining that the museum was in existence and what it did and what its projects were.

Nowhere in the letter was there a request for money or help of any kind.

After the usual Ottawa lull a reply came back with the curt rejoinder "Application refused."

Application for what? Nobody at the museum knows.

HIS POLICY: There has been a bit of a flurry about the question of night school classes in buildings owned by the Greater Victoria School Board.

Chairman Peter Bunn set the record straight saying "My doctrine is to give the schools back to the people. They are the ones who have paid for them and they should be encouraged to use them."

BOOK NOOK: A man and his mouse went searching for a book in a downtown store. The store was jammed with people and there was not a clerk in sight.

Finally the husband went to a man with a badge in his lapel, a sure sign of authority, and asked for a clerk. The store man pointed to a little old lady who was gently browsing along the shelves. She read a little here and a little there but she must love those books too much to sell any.

Recurring Leg Ache Needs Another Look by Doctor

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: About a year ago our daughter, who is 3½, complained of leg aches. Our doctor just said, "give her some sympathy." Now she is complaining more and more and wakes up in the night crying.

Could this mean rheumatic fever? When I was a child I complained a lot about leg aches. When I was 19, after an illness, doctors said I must have had rheumatic fever as a child. What should I do? — MRS. M.E.P.

Active youngsters sometimes get an occasional cramp just from being too tired, but when the trouble persists some other cause should be sought. There is no such thing as "growing pains." The pain means something is wrong. Rheumatic fever can be one possibility. Faulty foot structure or improperly fitted shoes may be a factor.

Take your little girl back to the doctor and tell him that the trouble is continuing.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: Our son has what the doctors describe as a sliding hernia and has been told he needs an operation. He has asked me to write and find out if anything else can help him. — W.L.

I gather that your son has a hiatal hernia, which goes under a variety of names. When the term "sliding" is used, it indicates that the lower end of the gullet presses through the diaphragm, then slips back to normal position again.

X-ray finding of a sliding hernia is rather common. Whether surgery is required depends on the severity of symptoms. Major indications for surgery include persistent pain, bleeding, or the presence of an ulcer in the affected area. Your brief letter does not tell me whether any of these is involved.

Dear Dr. Molner: I developed cancer of the stomach. My mother won't talk to my husband and she is making my life hell because she says it is all his fault, that everybody knows this cancer is caused by improper sex relations or something wrong with the man. She says I will pay for this the rest of my life if I stay with him or have anything more to do with him.

I have enough worries without this. My husband is a physically normal and healthy man. I just feel awful. Help me if you can. — MRS. A.B.

I wonder what could have caused your mother-off on her wild tangent. Challenge her to produce ANY medical authority who will support her opinion. None will.

No. 2 in Ballot Jailed, Fined

From AP, UPI and LAT
Truong Dinh Dzu, a 50-year-old lawyer who finished second in South Vietnam's recent presidential election, was sentenced Friday in Saigon to six months in prison and fined $27,711.

In other Vietnam news, U.S. officials led by Secretary of State Rusk sharply discounted the accuracy of reports that North Vietnam is showing signs it wants to talk peace.

All the evidence available to the U.S. is to the contrary, Rusk and other high officers of the government said.

U.S. WARPS

Meanwhile, Sen. Joseph Clark (D-Pa.) told reporters that the U.S. is awaiting direct consultations with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko and other diplomats before deciding whether to bring the Vietnam problem back to the United Nations.

Clark told reporters U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg gave this information to a visiting group of congressmen Friday.

Clark said Goldberg told the congressmen the U.S. is carrying on intensive consultations to determine whether it would be possible for the UN to be useful in ending the war.

KEY PEOPLE

Goldberg reportedly told the congressmen he was awaiting the arrival of key people, including Gromyko, over the next two weeks for final consultations before making a recommendation to the state department.

In Saigon, Dzu blamed government pressure for his prison sentence and said he would appeal. The government's most outspoken critic, he was convicted of writing a bad cheque in 1962 and of illegally transferring money to an American bank last year.

SECOND CHARGE

The first charge against him involved a $3,474 cheque that "bounced" back in the days of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem. Dzu said Friday the cheque bounced because his foe Diem from his bank account. He added that friends had made the cheque good.

The second charge was that he illegally transferred $11,500 to the Bank of America in San Francisco. Dzu said the money never came from Vietnam but was deposited by "American friends who are paying for my children's education."

In Washington, Senate investigator Joseph Lippman said the U.S. has wasted millions of dollars in shipping broken-down construction equipment to Vietnam.

The money was spent on repair equipment, but much of the machinery wasn't repaired or was beyond repair, Lippman said. He blamed the foul-up on the Agency for International Development.

According to U.S. sources, a new TV-guided missile called the Walleye is being used against North Vietnam. It is an air-launched weapon so accurate it can pick out military targets in crowded cities which could not be hit before because of risk of hitting civilians.

Friday in their Mekong River Delta stronghold the U.S. Army stepped up the pressure on South Vietnam's Viet Cong guerrillas, sending a combat team ashore and into a furious battle with about 500 seasoned guerrillas.

Toward nightfall, the fighting in the rice paddies 45 miles south of Saigon died.

Try this sociable new combination of flavour.

Why Gilbey's London Dry weds perfectly with Bitter Lemon.

The answer is remarkably simple. Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's London Dry marries joyfully with the sharp new taste and lively bubbles of bitter lemon.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Note: not surprisingly a slice of lemon makes the perfect garnish.

Himalayan Storm

AS LONG AS THE echoes of gunfire continue to disturb the high Himalayas in Nathu La, a 15,000-foot pass where Indian and Chinese troops confront each other, the nations will wonder whether this is the beginning of another expansionist adventure on the part of Peking or perhaps a phase of Mao Tse-tung's pattern of revolution he seeks to force upon the world.

Since Monday sporadic fighting has continued in the uneasy border area between Tibet and Sikkim. The Indian presence there is explained by the fact of her responsibility as the protective power of the little principality under a treaty of 1950. But Sikkim is of large strategic importance to New Delhi and the military leaders are uncomfortably aware that an invading force from Tibet would have to fight its way only 34 miles to reach East Pakistan.

The implication is obvious. Relations between India and Pakistan remain strained over the Kashmir dispute which led them into war in 1965. Although East Pakistan is separated from its bigger western brother-state by the whole of India's widest girth, the two are politically sympathetic. A Chinese military entry might not be unacceptable.

But it would be intolerable for India, which would be faced with powerful, unfriendly forces on her vulnerable east and western flanks.

What makes the present situation more disturbing than other border clashes in the past five years, is the Chinese reaction to India's suggestion of a ceasefire and consultation. The answer was a renewal of the bombardment of the Indian position by Chinese artillery and a response in kind.

More than that, the Chinese have warned of the possibility of air attack. "None of you will survive," a radio broadcast said.

This could imply the threat of use of Peking's newly-developed nuclear arms, a prospect of appalling proportion.

New Delhi has suggested, hopefully, that China is not likely to invite world condemnation by invading a small, peaceful state like Sikkim. China could scarcely care less what the nations' reaction might be. In the first place they could justify such an attack on the grounds of Indian aggression. Indeed, they have laid the foundation for such a spurious argument by the accusation: "The serious armed provocation launched by the Indian reactionaries is a military adventure long planned by them."

Dr. Banda's Reason

SEEKING TO FIND some sort of explanation for Dr. Hastings Banda's decision to establish diplomatic relations between Malawi and South Africa which simultaneously reflects favorably upon the Banda government but unfavorably upon the Vorster regime, a number of British observers have credited the Malawi president with inventing a brand new political policy which will substantially weaken South Africa's apartheid policies.

As an example of this far-fetched reasoning the Manchester Guardian states that although Dr. Banda will be criticized by other African leaders for his action "... every outside influence (such as Dr. Banda's) which can illustrate the wickedness and absurdity of apartheid, and thus, contribute to its downfall is to be welcomed."

The Scotsman goes so far as to suggest that Dr. Banda's tactics are specifically designed to undermine apartheid—but by different means than those advocated by others. They should thus be welcomed and given a fair trial.

Though such arguments may be very satisfying from a idealistic point of view, they are hardly realistic.

In actual fact all that Dr. Banda has done in establishing diplomatic communication with South Africa is simply to publicly acknowledge that Malawi cannot exist without the continued support of the white republic to its south.

The situation is this: Malawi provides a very substantial portion of South Africa's foreign labor force. The flow of Malawi workers to the South African mining fields has gone on for many years and will undoubtedly continue for many more.

It is an arrangement which suits both governments: it benefits Malawi through employing, training and educating thousands of its laborers who would otherwise be unemployed at home, while at the same time benefitting South Africa by establishing a ready pool of good and willing workers from which it can draw conveniently and quickly.

Another great advantage of this mutual aid program to Malawi is that when the Malawi men finish their contract term they return home more sophisticated, better educated and with a pocketful of money sufficient to buy a wife, a farm or a business.

So much part of Malawi tribal life has the South African mine become that in many parts of the country a girl of marriageable age will often refuse to wed a young man unless he has worked in South Africa.

If South Africa ever stopped recruiting Malawi workers both Malawi's economy and its social structure would receive a serious setback—a setback Dr. Banda is obviously not prepared to suffer at this time.

Gratifying Speed

THE SUCCESS of Victoria's previous downtown-rebuilding schemes, Bastion Square and Centennial Square, may have had something to do with the speed with which the urban renewal study in the Wharf Street waterfront area has been approved by the provincial and federal governments. The city has shown a fine example for other Canadian communities.

Be that as it may, it is most gratifying that the senior governments have so promptly and willingly given their support to the economic survey of how the largely rundown harborfront area could be reconstructed to make it a vital, beautiful, and high-tax-paying part of the metropolitan core.

The egg is not the chicken, but obviously there is great expectation that what will hatch out of the study will be a massive investment of private money with public funds providing the incentive—particularly, perhaps, if a convention centre becomes part of the redevelopment.

One thing at a time—and the survey let alone the renewal has not yet begun—but still it may not be too early for the civic planners to start thinking also of some complementary re-designing for the opposite shore of the harbor, in what is now a corner of the Victoria West industrial reserve. Even a modest amount of beautification would ease the contrast if the eastern harborfront is to rise in splendor.

May Be on the Way Out

The Glitter Is Fading From Gold

By PETER HAWTHORN, from Johannesburg

THE world's monetary system revolves around gold. It costs a fortune to find, to process and to ship to the other side of the world. There, in the darkness of a thousand vaults and strongrooms, it is buried again.

Since gold was discovered, man has struggled to possess more of it than anyone else. During the last 15 years only 42 per cent of the free world's production has found its way into international monetary reserves. Last year the entire world output of gold went into private hands.

Three-quarters of the world's gold production comes from South Africa. Countries which pursue bitter trade sanctions policies against South Africa are considered against the republic's apartheid policy, are blantly forgetful of the fact that their economies are bolstered by gold obtained mostly from South Africa's mines, drawn from the ground by black labor and white management.

One or two miles beneath me as I type the endless shift is going on. Not for nothing do the Africans call Johannesburg "E'Gol"—City of Gold. It's a city paved not with gold but built on gold, 21 years ago when a bunch of diggers scratched the surface of the world's richest gold reef.

Today towering, yellow, dried cyanide silos, mine dumps stand as monuments to Johannesburg's contribution to South Africa's growth. And the probe for gold has now swung to the Orange Free State and the south-eastern Transvaal.

Gold, with all its anomalies and headaches, remains the backbone of the South African economy just as it stands, at present, the spine of world finance.

But times are changing. The gleam of gold is getting dimmer. An agreement reached in London by the Group of Ten leading industrial nations on a debt plan to reduce the world's monetary system is an event of great significance for South Africa as the world's leading gold producer.

"Gold is on the way out," said Richard N. Cooper, professor of economics at Yale University.

And South Africa is presently coming to grips with the fact that the gold industry itself is a mortal coil. One day the gold will just peter out, either becoming useless or used up.

The peak of South Africa's gold production has almost been reached. From over the 30,000,000 ounce mark at present the annual production rate is expected to rise a little more and then to drop by up to 10,000,000 ounces in the next 20 years.

Without any significant industrial or economic changes the gold production will be down to about 3,000,000 ounces by the year 2000, it is estimated.

Total gold production from the Witwatersrand (Ridge of the White Waters) geological basin to date is about 300,000,000 ounces. In spite of this massive output there still remains about 400,000,000 ounces to be taken out of existing mines.

But while the price of gold has stayed at $35 an ounce—fixed by the United States in 1934—costs have risen at an alarming rate. And the South African Chamber of Mines calculates that at a 4-per-cent cost escalation rate gold worth about $5,000,000,000 may have to be written off. It will stay in the ground—too costly to mine.

A recent report by the Chamber of Mines, prepared mainly for submission to the prime minister's Economic Advisory Council says that over the last 10 years almost $42,000,000 has been spent on the search for potential new mines and goldfields. Of this amount $30,000,000 has been written off as unproductive.

The "rotation pay limit"—based on estimated tonnage available for mining, capital expenditure, working cost structure, and tax and lease regulations—has more than doubled since the year the gold price was fixed.

Capital investment to open a new deep-level mine is today about eight times the amount there is likely to be no change in the status quo for a long time.

So gold and its lure remain a rich legacy of problematical wealth to South Africa where the government and private industry are searching for ways and means of getting as much gold out of the ground while the going is reasonably comfortable, meanwhile trying to keep a balance between costs and production.

In the words of one South African newspaper—the Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail—"the country cannot afford to sit back and wait to see if Cooper's prediction is right."

The anomaly persists. Gold means money. And in simple terms it is doing more good to produce gold than is economically practical.

The prospect of a world which will have to learn to live without gold is a far distant one, it is true. But the transition will be a painful one.

A whole pattern of crime and high adventure will change. Those back fillings will be worthless.

And South Africa's mines, where the adventure was perpetrated, will just be holes in the ground.

Stockholm's Brief Experience

By ROLAND HUNTFOED, from Stockholm

FOR 20 hours, September 2 and 3, Stockholm was without private motor cars. They were banned from the city centre while final preparations were made for the changeover from left-hand to right-hand traffic.

At the same time it produced a rare opportunity for trying one way of solving chronic traffic problems and dealing with atmospheric pollution.

White private motorists were banned from the centre of Stockholm, extra taxis and buses were put into service, and, together with the underground railway they proved capable of dealing with all the public who wanted to move about the city. Traffic moved swiftly and easily; since the streets carried the volume of which they were capable.

To traverse the centre of Stockholm, a distance of about three miles, usually takes between 30 minutes and an hour; perhaps more. During the private motor-ban, it was possible to do the journey in about 10 minutes. I tried one route of about a mile to the railway station, which at times has taken me three-quarters of an hour and involved missing a train: a taxi roamed through in four-and-a-half minutes.

But other advantages became apparent, apart from the sheer reduction in traffic. Without private motorists, there were only professional drivers—those in charge of taxis and buses, who are on the roads all their working hours, and who must drive well to earn their living. Now, alone in the traffic, they proved that in the complex patterns of a modern city there is little room for the amateur.

The head of the Stockholm traffic department, Mr. Heide Berglund, has been campaigning for a permanent ban on private motorists in the city. "This experience," he said, "is an inspiration. It is much calmer for everybody; and nobody suffered from the absence of cars. A city absolutely free of motor cars is of course utopian. There will always be private motorists, but all of them need not drive into the centre of the city."

Mr. Berglund says that he is now going to make it more difficult to park in the centre of Stockholm. "It is parking spaces that determine how many motor cars can be driven in the centre of the city," he points out.

Car parks are being built near suburban railway stations, and Mr. Berglund hopes to persuade motorists to leave their vehicles there and take the train into Stockholm by issuing "park and ride" tickets. These will cover parking fees and rail fares and, presumably, will be more economical than the high parking meter charges in the centre of the city.

Not that Mr. Berglund appears too optimistic about jumping private motorists out of the city without harming them by law.

"The motor car is our holy cow," he says. And in Stockholm it is used not merely as a means of transport but also as a kind of badge to indicate the owner's status and prosperity.

There are too many Stockholm motorists who prefer taking up to two hours to drive to work in the morning rather than to save three-quarters of the time by taking the underground railway.

Besides showing the limitations of even well-designed street systems faced with urban car ownership, the short ban on private driving in Stockholm forcibly demonstrated a drastic cure for atmospheric pollution in cities.

Under normal conditions, the concentration of carbon monoxide in Stockholm is three times the maximum permitted by the public health authorities in factories under working conditions. A few hours after the ban came into force, traffic engineers were unable to detect the smallest traces, using the most sensitive apparatus at their disposal.

The way this capacity is allocated has a decisive influence on the way the world shall go. To put it crudely, what the U.S.A. and Russia will want to buy will be what the rest of the world will have to produce and sell; conversely, the rest of the world will have to use the dollars and rubles it earns to buy what Russia and the United States are prepared to sell.

De Gaulle thinks on broad philosophical lines. He asks himself whether the world

Sewage and Garbage

THE following is a copy of a letter I have sent to the Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia. The matter under discussion is of primary importance to us all and that is why I would like to draw it to the attention of your readers.

Decisions to be made soon by local councils and the regional district will determine the quality of our environment. It is our responsibility to inform ourselves of the alternatives and then advise our representatives, local, regional and provincial, as to our choice.

"The capital region has the opportunity, and now, may have the responsibility to solve the twin problems of sewage and garbage disposal."

"The recent survey is a preliminary step. Regrettably, it did not present alternate methods of disposal, an omission which I hope, will be remedied shortly."

"I wish to add my support to those who recommend composting of both sewage and garbage on a regional basis by the regional district. As temporary residents of this earth, we do not have the right to dump our noxious garbage on Hardland and Millstream Roads. Neither do we have the right to discharge raw sewage in sea or river. I was heartened to note that the provincial government is taking action to prevent further pollution of sea, land and air."

"I trust that the regional district will take fullest advantage of all pertinent legislation, provincial and/or federal, to tackle these two problems together and solve them in a way that will enhance our environment."

World Peace

I have just finished reading the concluding instalment of the four-part article "Is Peace Attainable?" which was featured on your editorial page and wish to extend my sincere appreciation for the high level of spirited material of international scope that you have included in your paper over the past several years.

This recent series by 11-year-old Russell Wedell of Cranbrook is an outstanding example of clear (I almost said adult), well-formulated and documented writing by a member of an age group that is all too often dismissed as irresponsible, selfish and concerned only with material things. With the future in the hands of young men like Russell Wedell, the world may well take hope.

The surprising factor in these four articles dealing with the problems of world peace and Mr. Wedell's conclusion that the only logical and workable plan is a form of limited world government, under the United Nations—whose laws would be enforced by a United Nations police force—is that this is the plan first formulated in England prior to 1918, advocated by a large percentage of delegates to the San Francisco conference.

Carbon monoxide is the toxic gas produced by gasoline engines, and its disappearance was to be expected. But there was also a considerable reduction in the concentration of sulphur dioxide, the poisonous gas found in the fumes of diesel engines which is known to be a serious danger to health. The concentration of this gas during the private driving ban was about one fifth of that during a comparable period with unrestricted traffic, despite the increase in the number of diesel engines caused by the extra taxis and buses. The lesson seems to be that by reducing the total amount of pollution, the remainder clears itself quicker. From the point of view of both traffic and public health, by changing from one side of the road to the other, the Swedes have convinced many observers that the private motorist has no business in the centre of a modern city.

With reference to your editorial in the Colonist regarding the practice of driving on the right or left side of the road, I understand the differences between countries in Europe was due to Napoleon Bonaparte.

In early times the normal practice for horsemen was to ride on the left, as this meant that a man's right or sword arm was ready for defence against an enemy approaching from the opposite direction.

Napoleon, however, discovered that if his mounted troops kept to the right hand side of the road and so came up on their enemies' left side, this unusual confrontation completely upset even highly trained troops, who became flustered and were forced to break their ranks to attack Napoleon's men. He therefore changed the rule of the road to "keep to the right" in all countries of Europe which he conquered. Britain and Sweden were two of the few which never fell to Napoleon's armies so the old natural rule of keeping to the left was never altered.

It is very pleasant to see the mayor is in favor of the continuation of the Maritime Museum. We know, to our sorrow, the city has many calls on its purse, but perhaps if the provincial government could be persuaded also to help it would ease the burden. There is no doubt the museum, as a part of our history, is also a great tourist attraction. This I have observed personally. In any case, we cannot see it close. It is part of our Victoria.

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and if signed with pen-name, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

where the United Nations Charter was drawn up.

It is the subject of study entitled "World Peace through World Law" by Granville Clark and Louis Sohn, foremost jurists of the United States and advisors to three presidents.

"World Peace through World Law" has been taken up by the United World Federalists, a non-political, non-sectarian, international organization having branches in nearly half of the world's nations with a headquarters in The Hague. There are branches in nearly every major city in Canada, including Victoria.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson has publicly stated that the only hope for peace in the world is the setting up and acceptance of such a plan.

Mr. Wedell has, perhaps unknowingly, joined the ranks of some of the leading thinkers and statesmen of the world who are dedicating all their efforts to bringing about the condition of World Peace through World Law.

Put to Shame

Several days ago a small dark colored car was seen to stop on Dallas Road near some bushes between the Filigate and the breakwater at 8 p.m. The driver got out and threw a bagful of seven tiny two-week-old kittens into the bushes and drove quickly away. Two young boys who were in the vicinity observed this cruel deed and at once tried to find the kittens, but it was too dark. For four days afterwards they brought food to the bushes hoping the kittens would get it and survive.

On Sunday they decided to explore the dense thicket and get the kittens. They found only two small black kittens alive, screaming with hunger, and five dead kittens, partially eaten by rats either before or after they died. Each boy took a kitten home to his pet to look after, but the cats had other ideas, so they were brought to me to care for.

The kindness shown by these boys of eight and nine will surely put to shame whoever was responsible for such a heartless and cowardly act. Also, a visit to the scene of the crime to look at the remains of their helpless little victims might be an education to them.

Abandonment of any animal is illegal and cruel. There is absolutely no necessity for this as unwanted animals may be taken to a veterinarian or the SPCA who will dispose of them humanely.

De Gaulle's Consistency

By PHILIP DEANE

PRESIDENT de Gaulle's visit to Poland should make clearer to Canadians what moves the man and why he should come to Canada to espouse the slogans of Quebec separatists.

He was more circumspect in choosing his words to the Poles but the message was clear: think as a great power should. Mr. France, he told them. The characteristic thoughts of France in international politics all tend to reduce American and Russian influence, to end the state of affairs where the world's real power is divided between Moscow and Washington; he wants a third great power consisting mainly of European nations other than Russia, a third power that will shift its support this way and that, as circumstances demand, to prevent Russia or America from becoming dominant.

There is, once, in de Gaulle's thinking a strategic consideration: a third power with a nuclear force could decide the outcome of any war between the other two and thereby force them to keep the peace. With the rapid development of missiles and hydrogen bomb stockpiles, this element of de Gaulle's thinking has receded into the background—fear of mutual annihilation makes the others keep the peace. His main concern is to prevent the fate of the world from being decided by the United States and the U.S.S.R., the two coldest which control 75 per cent of the world's productive capacity.

The way this capacity is allocated has a decisive influence on the way the world shall go. To put it crudely, what the U.S.A. and Russia will want to buy will be what the rest of the world will have to produce and sell; conversely, the rest of the world will have to use the dollars and rubles it earns to buy what Russia and the United States are prepared to sell.

should become gadget mad, emphasizing material over other values, spending its resources to that end. He sees both Russia and the United States tending that way. Their gigantic size enables them, therefore, to determine the course human society will take.

De Gaulle is firmly convinced that despite their material success, the Americans and the Russians are less wise than the Europeans; that the values of the Russian and American societies are wrong. He wants to fight them and that is why he is trying to forge a third force.

Canada, he would say, is unfortunately a part of the American way of life which he wants to fight. Quebec is the one part of Canada that has not yet succumbed totally to Americanism; Quebec, therefore, should be encouraged to look to France as an alternative. If the rest of Canada, for the sake of unity, moves towards Quebec, de Gaulle would feel he has loosened the grip of Americanism on one state, just as he is trying to loosen the grip of Russianism on Poland.

Part of Victoria

I am very pleased to see the mayor is in favor of the continuation of the Maritime Museum. We know, to our sorrow, the city has many calls on its purse, but perhaps if the provincial government could be persuaded also to help it would ease the burden. There is no doubt the museum, as a part of our history, is also a great tourist attraction. This I have observed personally. In any case, we cannot see it close. It is part of our Victoria.

De Gaulle Promise Goes Into Action

Canadian Press from Quebec

France and Quebec have reached agreement on 17 points in the cultural and educational field as a result of talks between Education Minister Peyrefitte of France and representatives of the Quebec government.

This was disclosed in a joint communiqué issued at the conclusion of the talks which centred on changes and additions to Franco-Quebec agreements signed in 1963.

Mr. Peyrefitte said his visit was intended to bring "practical consequences" to promises of increased aid for Quebec which were made by President de Gaulle following his controversial July visit to Quebec.

The communiqué said agreement in principle was reached on these points:

• Adoption of a three-year program of expansion of Franco-Quebec cultural, scientific and technical co-operation, which will permit a 10-fold increase in the volume of exchanges under the 1963 agreements.

• Creation of a Franco-Quebec group to outline a proper system for developing and encouraging youth exchanges.

• Acceleration of efforts to bring about equivalence of diplomas granted at all levels.

• A reinforcement of the means placed at the disposal of the Montreal office of French radio and television broadcasting.

• Reciprocal exchange of journalism apprentices and encouragement for more Quebec journalists to travel to France.

• Reciprocal exchange of library books; establishment of a legal depositary of French books in Quebec and of Quebec books in France.

• Increased use in Quebec of school and university textbooks and programs used in France.

• Increased aid by the two governments to initiatives aimed at favoring the universality and the unity of the French language.

The communiqué made no mention of what the new programs will cost.

Wednesday, Mr. Peyrefitte mentioned that France's aid to Quebec would be increased 10-fold over a three-year period. Without quoting an exact figure, he estimated France currently is spending about $1,000,000 on aid to Quebec.

The 1967-68 Quebec budget provided for the spending of $750,000 on the education agreement with France and $360,000 on the cultural agreement.

OTTAWA — Outrumbered External Affairs Minister Martin shows signs of surrendering in the cabinet's battle-of-the-bubbly.

When he assigned a departmental officer to support the French government in its position to a Quebec court that Canadian vintners cease and desist from calling it "champagne," State Secretary Judy LaMarsh served notice she'd clobber him with her purse or hit him with her hat, even worse put her hat on him at the Liberal leadership convention — whenever that may be.

You see, some of LaMarsh's constituents labor in the vineyards and the wineries of Niagara Falls.

So the way she tells it, Mr. M. backed off.

Now agriculture minister Joe Greene has him back tracking.

Speaking for all farmers, including the growers of grapes, Joe kept after Mr. Martin about serving Canadian instead of French champagne at those dox external affairs throws at home and abroad.

Commenting on this demand, Mr. Greene said he was setting in example:

"Whenever I can afford champagne," he said, "I pour Canadian."

"You cannot see the destruction with sub-lethal amounts as you can when a lethal quantity leaves thousands of fish dead along the banks of a river."

"One fish dying at a time is a population of thousands is hard to detect. And you cannot see the effect upon eggs buried in gravel."

What threw a pall over delegates was the graphic presentation of the hideous results shown by Sir George Williams experiments.

Using colored and stark black and white pictures, Dr. Leduc visually displayed what happened to Atlantic salmon hatched in water with varying amounts of cyanide and then compared this with hatches in unpolluted water.

Pollution lengthened incubation periods, reduced hatching success, stunted growth, created congenital defects and left the fish ill equipped to exist in normal environments.

"We used cyanide because it is often found in industrial wastes and especially in wastes from the chemical industry," said Dr. Leduc.

The Montreal biologist told the convention discoloration of eggs was the first noticeable effect of pollution. "It increased as the amount of cyanide was increased."

The incubation period was increased six to nine days, the successful hatch dropped to 54 per cent compared with 84 for the unpolluted monitor and fish hatched in polluted waters weighed less and showed limited vitality.

Stanfield Is The Skipper

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It seemed altogether fitting that while he was their leader the Conservatives called him The Chief.

So now that he's going, where does that leave his successor Robert Stanfield? He's The Skipper.

Could be that The Chief symbolically spoke for the Conservative tribe from the Prairie west.

With much the same symbolism, The Skipper speaks for the Conservative crew from the Maritime East.

Who calls him The Skipper? Well, for one, Cy Kennedy, who Thursday resigned his Colchester-Hants seat for The Skipper's byelection purposes.

He would be going back down east at once, reported crewman Kennedy, to work for The Skipper.

Heath MacQuarrie, Conservative MP for Queen's constituency in Prince Edward Island, for another.

Crewman MacQuarrie aspires to be external affairs minister when the Conservatives return to power — as return they sometimes must, as return they always have. Asked what he thought of the Tory scuttlebut that king-maker Dalton Camp would get the prestigious external nod, he smiled:

"I don't think The Skipper's quite got around yet to making those kind of assignments."

The name's catching, the chances are Robert Stanfield to the party faithful will be The Skipper more often than he is The Leader, or even Bob.

Honeymoon Length Official

SLOUGH, England (UPI)—The Slough town council has decided to charge reduced rents for 100 new-style flats in municipal-owned apartments.

"After the first three years," said a town official, "we consider the honeymoon over. They'll have to pay the full rent then."

Yugoslav Blasts Prompt Search

TORONTO (CP) — Police raided 20 homes in Metropolitan Toronto Friday in a search for clues in last January's bombings of Yugoslav embassies and consulates.

The raids, which coincided with searches in cities between Bramford, Ont., and Montreal, came three days before the arrival in Ottawa of Premier Mike Spillak, number one aide to President Tito. Mr. Spillak is also expected in Montreal for Yugoslav national day at Expo Sept. 30.

A revolver was seized by RCMP officers and Toronto police in one raid and one man was taken into custody. Another man will be questioned, police said.

A police spokesman said the raids were intended to thwart possible violent demonstrations by anti-Tito groups against Mr. Spillak's visit. President Tito originally planned to visit Ottawa and attend Expo but threats against his life prompted officials to ask him to stay home.

Explosions last January rocked embassies at Ottawa and Washington and consulates in Toronto, Montreal, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

Police said a tightly-knit group of former partisans trained in using dangerous weapons and capable of carrying out threats against President Tito was responsible for the bombings.

Hooke Approved Subdivision

EDMONTON (CP) — A document showing that A. J. Hooke, while minister of municipal affairs and chairman of the provincial planning advisory board, approved in September, 1965, a subdivision plan for the residential community of Sherwood Park near Edmonton was submitted Friday to a judicial inquiry here.

The document was submitted by Noel Dant, provincial planning director, who in 1965 was Edmonton town planner. He was testifying at a judicial inquiry here.

Earlier testimony disclosed the Edmonton District Planning Commission had refused subdivision plans for Sherwood Park — then called Campbellton — in the municipal district of Strathcona and about 10 miles east of Edmonton. Mr. Hooke had bought a quarter-section of land in the area in 1951.

Under questioning by G. S. D. Wright, counsel for the NDP, Mr. Dant said it is customary for a member of the provincial planning advisory board to excuse himself if he has an interest in a proposal before it. Earlier, he said no one at any time tried to influence him or block his opposition to the Campbellton development.

Under questioning by W. S. Gill, counsel for Mr. Turcott, who initiated the probe, and I'm not too interested in names." He said he had never talked to Mr. Hooke about the project. He also said he knew of no relationship between Mr. Hooke and John Campbell, original developer of the site.

"When I'm considering a plan," he said.

NHA Loans Caught In High Rate Trap

TORONTO (CP) — Mortgage experts predict money to finance housing in Canada is headed for record interest rates.

A spokesman said Friday a change in federal policy concerning the National Housing Act is needed to prevent the NHA mortgage rate from reaching 7 1/2 per cent by Oct. 1.

The interest rate could jump to 7 1/2 from its current 7 1/4 per cent maximum if low prices and high yields continue in the Canada bond market, an official said. Experts said the Bank of Canada could keep the rate below 7 1/2 by purchasing long-term bonds but such a

Union, Ford Talking

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time since a strike began also days earlier, bargaining teams for Ford and the United Auto Workers resumed contract negotiations Friday.

The only major development in the meeting that lasted two hours and 15 minutes was an agreement to meet again Monday, after which both sides said they assumed there would be daily meetings.

Scurry Dealings Detailed

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Business Topics

The chairman of Scurry Rain-bow sold shares valued at about $675,000 in early August when the company's stock reached near its top value and when rumors were flying of a new mining discovery in northern Saskatchewan.

Under its new powers, the Ontario Securities Commission delisted into the "insider" trading of Scurry Rainbow during the period in which the stock rose sharply from about $7 to $48.

It found Frank Taplin, the chairman, sold 4,000 shares Aug. 2 at prices ranging from $46 to $48 and on Aug. 3 he sold a block of 13,700 shares at $43.

Despite this, Mr. Taplin still held 178,035 shares of Scurry at the end of August as well as $750,000 of convertible debentures.

Another insider trader was Ole Bandahl, a director from Seattle, who bought 400 shares at $36 1/4 Aug. 11.

The question now is what the OSC intends to do with the information? The new act suggests that insiders making profits out of information not available to other shareholders have to put the profits so made back into the company pot. How stands Mr. Taplin?

SHARP DILEMMA

Finance Minister Sharp is hoping to circumvent the worst elements of the current weakness in the bond market by sticking to the short term for his $325,000,000 refinancing requirements Oct. 1.

He has announced the financing will be in three maturities, one of one year and 3 1/2 months, one of two years and 2 1/2 months, and one of 3 1/2 years.

The offering price and the coupon rates will be given Monday. The Bank of Canada is obligated to take $175,000,000 of the issue.

The most interesting feature of the offering is a conversion feature in the 3 1/2-year issue which will give the holder the right to exchange his bond for a similar one of 26 years for a period up to Dec. 15, 1969. This conversion feature could be extremely valuable if before that time the current high yield on bonds is lowered.

INCO EXPANDING

A new nickel mine at Copper Cliff, Ont., and an expansion of its iron ore plant has been announced by Henry Wingle, chairman of International Nickel of Canada.

The new mine of 4,000 tons capacity will be in full swing by next April, and the iron ore plant at Copper Cliff will have its capacity raised by 30 per cent from its present 300,000 long tons of high grade ore pellets annually.

Inco's expenses in 1967 will be a record $110,000,000. The new projects announced by Mr. Wingle will cost more than $50,000,000.

RECORD SALES GROW

Great National Land and Investment Corp. of Nanaimo reports record 1967 sales on its summer resort development projects.

Frank Ney, president, in a tri-monthly report to shareholders said first-month sales at the newly-opened Galloo Beach development exceeded $40,000, while sales at the Ruxton Island, Whalebone Beach and Protection Island summer colonies had risen this year to about $200,000.

Great National's gross assets are $4,038,126 and the company has a land bank of some 2,000 acres, sufficient for 10 years' development.

The profit for the three months to July 31 before taxes was $28,907, up $5,411 from the previous year.

Survival?

Westbank Rumors Still Circulating

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Bank of Western Canada's death warrant has been signed by its shareholders but some backers still were talking Friday of a possible reprieve.

Director John Sharaki of Winnipeg said there are indications Marc Benveniste's British International Finance (Canada) Ltd., controlling shareholder of the bank through its holding in York-Lambton Corp. Ltd., would be willing to sell its interests if it could make a deal.

PRIME MOVER

The RIF group was the prime mover of Thursday's shareholders' meeting which voted, after hours of bitter argument, to wind up the bank's affairs.

There was confirmation following the shareholders' meeting that a group organized by Andrew Saxton of Vancouver had made a $5,000,000-plus offer to York-Lambton for its controlling interest.

The offer was for 433,500 shares — 50.1 per cent — at the full subscription price of $15 a share.

Mr. Saxton said the owners "by reason of circumstances" found they could not complete the sale but he is ready to go ahead if York-Lambton can find a way to deliver the shares.

... what is worse on a freighter cruise?

On these short runs, I'd say coat and tie at night. Shorts and slacks daytime. Women might wear a cocktail dress once or twice.

On long freighter cruises, formality breaks down — there are only 12 of you. I was on a freighter for 28 days. Everybody wore ties and coats for dinner the first week. At Panama they opened the hatches. We had copra aboard. The copra bugs came out. And that was the end of dressing for dinner.

5 worlds to go around—all on the "biggest bloomers" ships sailing the seven seas.

Any one of these P&O round-the-world adventures will take you to fascinating faraway lands. All fully escorted with all-inclusive prices, beginning at $1995 for 80 days. Sailing from Vancouver and Seattle. Pick the adventure you'd like to take. Then send the coupon for details.

In January, P&O's 30,000-ton Iberia sails on her Westward Ho! Round World Adventure. You'll visit Hawaii, the South Pacific, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Ceylon, Africa, Europe and the Caribbean. 21 ports of call in 97 days, including overland tour of Europe or the British Isles. And friendly P&O stewards to pamper you every inch of the way. From $2749 first class, $2212 tourist.

In February, you have a choice of special tours arranged by leading tour organizers that will take you to Europe aboard the 28,000-ton Oronsay. You'll sail to Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, South Africa, Portugal and England. Have an escorted tour of Europe. Then fly home. Prices start at $1995.

In March, sail on the Springtime Round World Adventure aboard P&O's 42,000-ton Orion, the fastest ship on the seven seas, and one of the most spectacular. (There's a lounge where you can gaze at the sea through a 130-foot picture window.) You'll call at 22 ports. See the Caribbean, Europe, Ceylon, Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, the Fiji Islands and Hawaii. An overland tour of the British Isles or Europe is included in the price. So is a special Coral Sea cruise from Sydney. Prices begin at $3373 first class, $2114 tourist—all fully escorted.

In March, take the Happy Wanderer Round World Adventure on three P&O liners: the 24,000-ton Chusan, the 30,000-ton Arcadia and Iberia. All air-conditioned. All finely fitted. All fun to be aboard—with parties every night and deck sports galore, 117 days in all. East through the Caribbean to Europe. You'll have 21 days to do France and Spain, before heading on to Australia, Hong Kong, Japan, and Hawaii. The price? From $3133 first class.

In April, P&O's 45,000-ton Canberra, a magnificent seagoing hotel with four swimming pools and acres of sunlit deck, sails on the Jolly Swagman Round World Adventure. To the Caribbean, Europe, Ceylon, Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, Tonga and Hawaii. Choice of tours—Europe or the British Isles. All included in the beginning price of $3189. First class only, 82 days.

What about the Suez Canal? P&O liners usually sail through the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal. But if the Canal is still closed, P&O will take you by an exciting new route that's not new to P&O. Around the tip of Africa—with calls at Durban and Capetown in South Africa, then to Les Palmes or Dakar, and on to Lisbon. It only takes a day or two more than through the Mediterranean and the Canal. All at no extra charge.

All fares in U.S. currency. ©1967-P&O Lines (North America), Inc.

Big Weekend For CFL Clubs

Western Football Conference fans sit in judgment this weekend as all their clubs take to the turf.

They'll be decking, among other things:

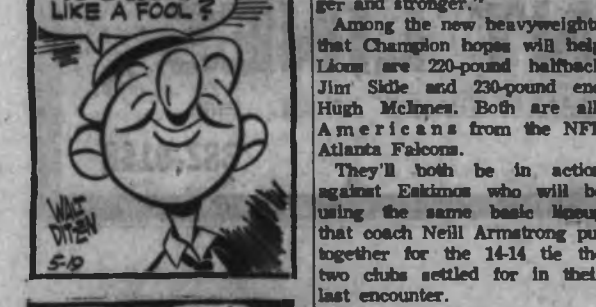

1. How coach Jim Champion's B.C. Lions juggling act stacks up against the relatively stable Edmonton Eskimos;
2. Which of two injury-nursing quarterbacks has the greater handicap—versatile Kenney Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers with a bruised shoulder or scrambling Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders with a sore ankle;
3. What effect two games and one plane ride in four days has on Calgary Stampeders.

The last question will be answered first as Stampeders, tied in top place with Saskatchewan in the WFC, take on Montreal Alouettes this afternoon.

The other two come up for adjudication Sunday in Winnipeg and Edmonton.

FAN FARE

Here They Come

Sandown's 13th annual thoroughbred race season opens today with an eight-race card highlighted by the Colonist Handicap. The 16-day season continues each Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Pari-mutual action includes quinellas on the first and eighth daily and exacto betting on the fourth. Post time for the first race is 2 p.m.

Jenkins Sets Record

Ho! Hum! Cards Win

San Francisco Giants are edging ahead in the National League battle for second place. Willie McCovey hit two home runs to provide the difference last night as the Giants bested Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-3, to move a game and a half ahead of the third-place Cincinnati Reds.

ONLY TWO SINGLES

The Reds were victims of Steve Carlton as St. Louis Cardinals moved closer to the inevitable pennant-clincher with a 4-0 shutout.

Carlton pitched a two-hitter, yielding a first-inning single to Tommy Helms and a second-inning single to Johnny Bench as he won his 16th game.

Cardinals routed rookie-ace Gary Nolan early. The 19-year-old right-hander walked two men in the third inning and Mike Shannon followed with his 12th home run. A double by Julian Javier and a single by Carlton brought in the fourth run and knocked Nolan out of the game.

Result left the Cardinals 10½ games ahead with 14 left to play for the lead and 15 left for the Giants. Any combination of St. Louis wins and San Francisco defeats adding up to five makes the Cardinals a mathematical certainty.

Chicago Cubs strengthened their grip on third place as Canadian Ferguson Jenkins pitched them to a 7-1 win over Atlanta Braves and set a club record that has stood for more than a half century.

Jenkins struck out only two Braves, but that brought his wild total for the season to 205. That broke the old record of 205 set by Oral Oveberg in 1905.

TWO RUNS, TWO WINS

Los Angeles Dodgers scored only two runs in two games but it was enough for a double-header sweep over Philadelphia Phillies.

Rookie Bill Singer defeated Jim Bunning in the opener when John Roseboro hit a fourth-inning home run. Ninth-inning singles by Lou Johnson and Wally Parker around a sacrifice bunt made Don Drysdale the winner over Chris Short in the second game.

ChiSox Topple Twins, Four-Way Race Again

Chicago White Sox got three-hit pitching and a 13-hit attack Friday night to create another traffic jam at the top of the American League tables and move within a game and a half of the three teams sharing the lead.

With Joel Horlen doing the pitching and Ron Hansen the clutch hitting, White Sox opened a three-game series with a 7-3 victory over Minnesota Twins.

With Boston Red Sox being taken, 6-2, by Baltimore Orioles and Detroit pulling out a 5-4 win in spectacular fashion over Washington Senators, it left the Twins, Red Sox and Tigers all 84-54.

WINS AND LOSSES

The White Sox are 83-56 and have 13 games left compared to 14 remaining for their three rivals.

Today, the Twins, who rested him another day, will send Dean Chance (18-12) against Tommy John (9-11) in the second game of the series.

Detroit has 20-game winner Earl Wilson ready for the Senators and the Red Sox have Jim Lonborg, 20-7, set for the Orioles.

Horlen, who pitched a no-hit no-run game last Monday, had a one-hit, one-run game starting the ninth inning last night.

Then Tony Oliva homered with a man on and two out, but it was too late with too little. The White Sox had built themselves a 7-1 lead mainly because Hansen drove in five runs with two homers and two singles.

Trailing, 1-4, starting the eighth inning, the Tigers came up with two rallies, tying the score in the eighth and getting the 5-4 run in the ninth.

Shoddy fielding and the wildness of starter Dave Morehead helped end the Red Sox win streak at four games.

It was only the third win in 12 games for the dethroned Orioles, who were officially eliminated from the race last week and who are now in ninth place.

Sports on TV

Sorry Mom... Dad's Busy

Better have the eyedropper and your most comfortable chair ready sports fans, there's a busy schedule of activities on television today and Sunday.

Altogether there are seven football games including the opener of the American Football League, National Football League, and American college season; two boxing matches including a world championship; one important American League baseball game and a film clip of the first Paralympic Pan-American Games where Victoria's Lorna Vinden emerged as the top Canadian medal winner.

And when your eyes can't take it anymore, radio station CKNW (980) has the play-by-play of the B.C. Lions at Edmonton CFL game Sunday starting at 2 p.m.

UNITAS OK But...

BALTIMORE (AP)—During the National Football League exhibition season of night games, coach Don Shula of Baltimore Colts received a letter asking him to play substitute quarterback Jim Ward in the first half instead of the second.

The writer said he had to go to bed before the second half. The letter came from a nine-year-old nephew of Ward.

Winnipeg to Honor Ex-Hockey Great

WINNIPEG (CP)—A dinner in honor of one-time hockey great Mervyn (Red) Dutton of Calgary will be held here Sept. 28, the day he officially opens the Dutton Memorial arena at St. John's Ravenscourt school.

Among the guest speakers for the $25-a-plate dinner will be Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, and John Wintermyer, president of the Canadian Hockey Foundation. Other hockey personalities, including members of Detroit Red Wings of the NHL, are also expected to attend.

Red Wings will be in Winnipeg for an exhibition hockey series with Canada's National Hockey team which makes the Dutton arena its headquarters. Both clubs will participate in the official opening of the $350,000 arena.

Dutton, who played with New York Americans in the NHL and is a past-president of the league, helped finance the arena in memory of his two sons—Alex and Joe—who were killed during the Second World War.

Curlers Organize

A meeting of the executive this week brought the decision that the Seniors' Curling Club would open its season at the Victoria Curling Club at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 10.

Rinks for the initial draw will be made up of the same players as at the close of last season.

New rinks are to be drawn when the membership has been filled and club members have had an opportunity to select skips.

Fees will remain the same as for last season but members are reminded that they will have to bring their own brooms as none will be available for rent.

Requests for membership may be made at the VCC and any curler 60 years of age and over is eligible for membership.

City Cadet Picked For Bisley Team

A young Victoria army cadet student at Claremont High School shot a combined total of 801 out of a possible 850 in eight matches at ranges from 200 to 600 yards to place ninth among the 12 qualifiers for Canada's cadet team next summer.

Cadet Allan lives at 6858 Veynes Road with his parents, James and Ellen Allan.

Along with cadets, Allan is a member of the Sea View Archery Club, a sport he claims "takes a little more concentration."

Rescuer Charged For Saving Fawn

SANGUDO, Alta. (CP)—Six weeks ago, Albert Romeo thought he would rescue a crippled fawn.

Today, his legislature member is trying to rescue Mr. Romeo.

The Sangudo farmer says his son Bruce, 17, found the fawn lying in a ditch Aug. 5.

It had one leg "packed up" and couldn't walk.

The Romeos took the animal home, put it in a fenced flower bed and borrowed a neighbor's nanny goat to nurse it.

Four days later two men from the fish and wildlife division arrived.

The fawn was taken to Edmonton's Storyland Valley and Mr. Romeo was charged under a section of the Game Act that says persons without permits shall not handle, transfer, possess or keep in captivity an "animal wild by nature."

He is to appear in court Oct. 3.

Dr. Hugh Horner, MLA for Leo St. Anne, says he will defend Mr. Romeo in court himself or "find the money for the best legal mind in the country." The farmer MP for Jasper-Edson won the Leo St. Anne seat for the Progressive Conservative party in the last provincial election.

Mr. Romeo says he will plead not guilty.

Sangudo is 60 miles north-west of Edmonton.

Forest Fires

Weary Crews Depart

Smoke-grimed and weary firefighters left B.C. forests by the hundreds last week and a token force only remains to cope mainly with the task of mopping up, the B.C. Forest Service said Friday.

In the past seven days, according to the latest fire report, fire crews in the woods were reduced to 330 from 1,683. Although 124 fires are still burning, the report said, most fires are quiet and in the mop-up stages.

Fire costs rose by $883,700 to bring the year's total to a record $5,950,000. All forest restrictions are not lifted, but pockets of high hazard remaining resulted in a warning to hunters to be careful with fire this weekend.

that come in. The mayor said that, unless he passes them on to the library, the books will be stored in the archives, out of reach of the general public.

Repairs on a $1,500,000 new print barge for MacMillan Bloedel which caught fire while under construction at Yarrow last week will come to $350,000. The fire, which took one life, will delay completion of the barge from Friday to the end of November.

Alterations involving the nine giant tubs of the big oil drilling rig Bedco 135, 20 miles off Tofino, are expected to take 10 days and cost $100,000 in lost drilling time. The job will be done on a three-shift, round-the-clock basis at Port Alberni by workers from VMD, builders of the rig.

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet at the corner of Douglas and Hillside at 1:30 p.m. today for a field trip to Francis Park.

An arbitration board decision on the price Spanish should pay for the McRae estate probably is a week away, it was indicated Friday. The board heard testimony for five weeks on the value of the 133-acre property.

An estimated 2,000 people jammed Oak Bay Junior high school auditorium to hear the message of Maharishi, an Indian holy man who advocates meditation.

Problems affecting Greater Victoria municipalities will be studied by Liberal Leader Ray Persaud during a three-day visit starting next Wednesday. The visit is to acquaint Liberals with local problems throughout B.C. in preparation for the next session of the legislature.

The Victoria Western Horsemen's Club will give its fifth

Franciscan

Pop Guitarist Quits Order

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Petit Journal, Montreal weekly tabloid, says Rev. Bernard de Bréville, a guitar-playing Franciscan monk whose rock-and-roll music earned him the title of the Good Lord's Minstrel, has left the priesthood.

The newspaper quotes the monk's superior, Rev. Laurent Pouliot, as saying that Father Bernard left voluntarily.

"Father Bernard took a courageous decision, a serious decision and he took it alone," said Father Pouliot. "There was no pressure."

POPULARITY GREW
Father Bernard, 42, could not be reached for comment on the story.

Ordained in 1953, he began playing and singing to young groups about 10 years ago. At his popularity grew, he made several recordings and frequently said:

"The public much prefers to listen to a two-hour concert than to a sermon of the same length."

In Rights Row

Priests Back Groppi

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — An ailing Rev. James Groppi, the Roman Catholic priest and civil rights leader who has taken his youthful followers on 15 days of marathon open housing demonstrations, won support Friday from the archdiocese's priests' senate.

"To the extent that Father Groppi's efforts are directed toward a living charity and social justice, the senate concurs with Archbishop William Cousins in retaining Father Groppi in his present assignment in the inner core," the senate said.

For two rights this week, angry whites marched to the archbishop's residence to demand he take action against Father Groppi. The archbishop referred the issue to the senate, but said the priest shouldn't be singled out as "the cause of the community's current agonies."

The senate voted 21-7 to back Father Groppi.

Kiernan Analyzes Survey

B.C. Campers Lead

Recreation Minister Kiernan is pondering results of a survey which indicates the swing in B.C. from tents to campers, trailers and tent trailers may not be as pronounced as some suspected.

Yen selected campgrounds across the province were used to obtain a sampling of campers on a single day in July. The survey showed most of the campers were from B.C. and Canadians were in an overwhelming majority.

26 PER CENT

The percentage of non-tenters — using trailers, tent trailers and truck campers — ranged from a low of 26 per cent at Omineca Lake in the Fraser Valley to a high of 92 per cent in Manning Park.

Mr. Kiernan said there is an emerging pattern of use by tenters and non-tenters. Near the major urban centres, he said, tenters are likely to represent a good percentage of the lower income groups who spend their only vacation close to home under canvas.

CULTURE LAKE

He cited these examples. At Omineca Lake, on the outskirts of Greater Vancouver, 80 per cent of those pulled were British Columbians and only 26 per cent were non-tenters.

Yet in Manning Park, B.C., campers represented 60 per cent and 92 per cent of the campers were filled by truck campers, trailers or tent trailers, said Mr. Kiernan.

Bishop Pike Claims:

Life After Death Proved

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rt. Rev. James Pike, resigned Episcopal Bishop of California, claims in a new book there is enough empirical evidence, aside from any question of religious faith, to warrant belief in life after death.

The evidence, he says, includes "many instances of credible phenomena of communication with deceased persons" who transmit messages to the living through mediums.

He also cites experiments in mental telepathy and other forms of extra-sensory perception, and the reported experiences of users of LSD and other psychedelic drugs, as evidence that "the human psyche is capable of transcending the space-time continuum."

Bishop Pike's new book is entitled If This Be Heresy (Harper & Row). It reiterates many of the theological views he has previously expressed, which have prompted some churchmen to accuse him of heresy.

The new book differs from Bishop Pike's earlier writings mainly in the heavy emphasis which he places on "psychic phenomena" such as clairvoyance, precognition, and psychokinesis ("mind over matter" demonstrations) as evidence of an spiritual element in man that transcends the physical limitations of the body, including mortality.

After studying these phenomena closely, Bishop Pike says, he has become convinced not only that the human personality survives death, but also that "occasional communication across the chasm is possible."

The book appears simultaneously with a volume entitled The Bishop Pike Affair, also published by Harper & Row, in which two Episcopal laymen, William Stringfellow and Anthony Towne, charge Pike was "dealt with unjustly and cruelly" when his colleagues in the Episcopal House of Bishops last October adopted a resolution rebuking him for "irresponsible" public statements on theological questions.

Discussions Replace Evening Prayers

LONDON (Reuters) — Discussions of such topics as alcoholism and mental health will replace hymns and prayers at the Anglican Cathedral of Southwark to attract people to church.

As part of a one-year program, Sunday evening services will be abolished. Instead, speakers will introduce topics from a platform in the nave and invite the congregation to join in.

Rector's Opinion

Unity Explained: It's God's Will

Unity of Christian churches is God's will. This is the opinion of Canon Brian Page, rector of St. Barnabas Anglican Church.

Canon Page, referring to the proposed union between his church and the United Church, believes there should be more concern about unity on the part of all church people. But he argues that nothing be done to compromise the truth in the interest of a facile and speedy union.

"But, coupled with this, there should be a recognition that unity is God's will and that therefore we cannot help working for it however long it may take to achieve," he said.

In his own words Canon Page describes how he came to these conclusions: "The new climate of the times has enabled representatives of the different Christian churches to meet in a friendly way to discuss theology, to co-operate in fields of social service, and even to worship together. This is good, but this is not unity."

It may seem to increase the feeling that all that is needed is being done. Certainly there is no evidence of a widespread surge of enthusiasm for unity. Most of the people in our churches would probably prefer to go on as they are. So, why press for unity?

The answer to this question must be found not in pragmatic considerations but in theology. We must seek unity because God wills it, and God wills it because he created the Church for it. Disunion is the result of man's sin.

Indeed, God created the world that men should live together in that peace and in unity. The antagonisms which divided the nations are also due to man's sin.

The tragedy is that the Church, which was put into the world to carry on the work of reconciliation, to call all men to a common table where they can enter into communion with one Lord, and so into fellowship with one another: this same Church has itself become so fragmented that even its own members cannot meet at the common Table in full communion with one another.

So, we press for unity because we cannot help doing so, believing it to be God's will. And we are thankful for any step that is taken to promote this.

Such a step has been taken recently by the two largest non-Roman Catholic bodies in this country, the United Church and the Anglican Church of Canada, with the acceptance by both their governing bodies, of a document called the Principles of Union.

It is hard to see why a few Anglicans say they cannot accept this document. I must confess I also find it hard to see how it is that the United Church can accept it!

Undoubtedly there remain differences in interpreting the actual statements made in the Principles.

The presumption is that these matters will come to the surface in the discussions of the various commissions which are now being appointed, and it will most likely take a long time before they are ultimately resolved. Indeed, even in any future united church many differences of opinion are bound to remain.

But Anglicans at least have learned to live with their differences and should not be worried about the prospect of having to continue to do so.

Particular concern has been expressed about the proposal in the Principles for the eventual uniting of the two churches' ministries. Too much attention need not be given to that at this stage since it cannot become a practical issue until after much further discussion has been held on a multitude of other matters.

I believe difficulties about the ministry may eventually be resolved if we are all prepared to admit that all our ministries are impaired just because we are out of communion with one another.

Episcopalians Asked For Negro Aid Money

SEATTLE (AP) — Episcopalians were asked Friday to raise $1,000,000 a year for the next three years "to enable organizations of black people, in programs under their control, to gain economic and political power."

Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, presiding bishop of the 3,500,000-member Episcopal Church, the U.S. counterpart of the Anglican Church, issued the call in a five-point program he submitted to the executive council.

"The agency, frustration and suffering of human beings which has erupted in terrible rioting in some of our cities forces us to admit the precarious condition of society," Bishop Hines said in his report. "We in the church are part of the problem. The sickness of society is our sickness."

Bishop Hines said he worked out the proposed program after soliciting advice from Negro leaders. He said their report warned the church to reform itself.

"Until the church is purged of the crime of racism by respecting blacks within its membership and by exercising its economic and political power to declare non-compliance with oppression we cannot take you seriously," the Negro report said.

Rejoicing with Music

The congregation of Christ Church Cathedral is making a start on learning the exciting modern music called Rejoice at the family communion service Sunday morning, Dean Brian Whitlow said Friday.

"Church people are gradually coming to understand that our great central service of the eucharist is, before anything else, an occasion of joy and praise," he said. "The very word eucharist means thanksgiving."

"The music which surrounds it should therefore express this fact and this new setting certainly does this. It is easy to learn; everybody can join in fully; it is unmistakably contemporary; it will help us to express our joy and praise in modern idiom on our Lord's resurrection day."

United Church Women will hold a service of women at 11 a.m. in Metropolitan Church. Mrs. G. G. Smith, wife of the minister of Gordon United Church, in Langford, will speak on Open Doors, and Mrs. Grace Hamming will be soloist. Members of the UCW will act as ushers and participate in the conduct of the service.

In the evening, Rev. E. Laura Butler will speak on the Christian Pavilion at Expo.

At the family service at Emmanuel Baptist Church Sunday morning, Rev. Norman Archer will preach the second Bible lesson on the Gospel of John. Speaking on The Witness, he will discuss John's summoning of reliable witnesses to attest that Jesus was the Son of God.

At the later morning worship he will speak on The First Commandment, second sermon in a series. His aim is to show this law is the basis of all that follows and that it has a relevant application today.

CHROMIUM PLATE

"No one in civilized society today is moved when he hears a law forbidding the worship of gods carved from wood or stone," Mr. Archer said. "But when someone mentions gods of chromium plate, cut glass and stainless steel, then we begin to shuffle uneasily. God now is coming too close for comfort. He is breathing down our necks and we do not like it."

At evening worship Mr. Archer will continue his series on Victorious Living with a sermon on The Opposition.

Services at Centennial United Church will take a new format beginning Sunday. The 9:30 a.m. service will be for those earnestly desiring Bible study and renewal of spiritual life. Dr. S. J. Parsons said Friday. The 11 a.m. service will be conventional. There will be church school in all departments but there will be no Sunday evening services.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at morning and evening services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. Bruce Molloy will preach at both services.

In Christian Science churches the lesson-sermon will be based on the subject Matter. The golden text is taken from 1 John: "Little children, keep yourselves from idols."

Developments and trends in Tanzania, Zambia and Rhodesia will be discussed in First United Church Sunday evening. Rev. Marvin Fowler will interview Rev. Fred Anderson, United Church missionary to Zambia on the mission of the church in the industrial upheaval in Africa. Mr. Anderson went to Africa in 1964 and for the past three years has been editor of adult literacy texts for the Zambian government's department of community development.

He now is doing post-graduate work in linguistics at the University of Victoria. At 11 a.m. in First United, Rev. R. J. D. Morris will speak on Abraham's Way. Wilfrid Orchard will share in the conduct of the service, which will be aired in a delayed broadcast at 7 p.m. over CKDA.

Belmont Avenue United is adjusting its church school program to enable all departments from infants through 14 years of age to meet at the regular worship service.

Children nine and over will share with the adults the worship experience, breaking for classes part way through the service. Children eight and under will assemble for children's worship, followed by class instruction. The CGIT will start its fall meetings Monday night. Ray Nesbitt has taken over the position of general superintendent of the church school.

In the Unitarian Church of Victoria Dr. Geoffrey Gilbert will speak on A Unitarian Looks at Rites and Rituals, at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Dr. Gilbert, a native of Montreal, is a retired geologist

In City Churches

St. Peter's Church, Lakehill, off Quadra, will hold a Fun Fair at 2 p.m. Sept. 23. The fair will be opened by Mrs. Hugh Curtis.

The Christian Doctrine of Man will be Rev. A. G. MacLeod's subject at St. Aidan's United. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Vera Barclay, will present "Expectant Expectant" Solists

Retired Minister Even Golfs

Busy Personal Centenary

By DON GAIN

He's a theologian, he's a Hebrew scholar, he's a golfer and a bridge player, he's a retired United Church minister and next week he enters the 100th year of his life.

"I've already overshot the runway for 25 years," he said this week with a laugh and a twinkle in his eyes.

Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson of 2333 Beach Drive still does his own shopping and from time to time he has a go at golf and a rubber of bridge with friends of long standing.

It's almost 30 years since he retired as minister of First United Church after 35 years in the ministry.

Dr. Wilson was born near Bradford, Ont., graduated from the University of Toronto with first-class honors in 1900. He took his MA there in 1907 and the following year graduated from Knox College, Toronto. During his college career he won seven scholarships. In 1922 he received his Doctor of Divinity degree at Knox College.

He had been ordained in 1903 and had several churches before he came to what is now First United Church in 1921.

He retired May 23, 1933, and has had a very active life ever since.

He has played golf for 52 years but he never plays on Sunday. He played in 50 tournaments and won 23 trophies. He was still playing nine holes in 46 at the age of 81. One of his oldest friends, Hon. Robert Mayhew, has been his golf partner for years.

British Sky Defenders Honored at Services

Sunday is Battle of Britain Sunday and it will be commemorated by the RCAF Association, 800 Pacific Wing and the Air Force Officers Association with special memorial services.

The services will commemorate the day, Sept. 15, 1940, when outnumbered Spitfires and Hurricanes fought the RAF downed 56 German planes while losing only 25.

"They will commemorate the day stretching from July to October, 1940, when, as PO G. H. Corbett of Oak Bay Churchill said "Thus Britain was saved and never was so much owed by so many to so few."

The Battle of Britain was the RCAF's baptism of fire. In August, 1940, a squadron for the first time flew into action against an enemy, won its first victories and suffered its first casualties.

There were also Canadians flying with the RAF in the Battle of Britain. About 47 Canadians lost their lives in it. PO G. H. Corbett of Oak Bay Churchill said "Thus Britain was saved and never was so much owed by so many to so few."

At the same time the memorial service in the cathedral will begin, under the sponsorship of the Air Force Officers' Association. The non-denominational service will be conducted by Wing Commander C. D. Blencoe and Sqdn. Ldr. Dean Brian Whitlow will deliver the address. Lieutenant-Governor Peakes and Mrs. Peakes and Mayor Hugh Stephen and Mrs. Stephen will attend.

After the service, four squadrons of air cadets, from Nanaimo, Sidney, Duncan and Victoria, will parade to the Cenotaph for the laying of a wreath. Separate dinners will be held at 7 p.m. tonight. The officers will meet in Victoria Golf Club for a meal dinner at which their speaker will be Air Vice Marshal E. M. Reyno, chief of personnel of the Canadian Forces, Ottawa.

ASSOCIATION DINNER

RCAF Association, 800 Pacific Wing, will hold its annual Battle of Britain dinner at the association's building on Wilson Street.

Guest speaker is Group Capt. Robert Turnbull, chief of staff, personnel and administration, Maritime Pacific Headquarters, Esquimalt.

Other guests are Air Commodore R. C. Weston, director general, personnel services, Ottawa; Group Capt. D. B. Wente, commandant of Royal Roads; Wing Commander D. M. Payne, commanding officer of 121 Squadron, CFB Comox; Lt. Col. David Coell, commanding officer, Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's); and Len Stewart of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Icebreaker

Long Way Round

The Canadian icebreaker John A. Macdonald, now working in the western Arctic, may be forced to circumnavigate North America to return to its Halifax base, a Coast Guard spokesman said Friday in Victoria.

"Extremely heavy ice conditions in Amundsen Gulf this summer made it necessary for an icebreaker to accompany transport ships supplying DEW Line sites and Eskimo villages," explained Larry Slaght.

He said until the 9,160-ton ship arrived in the western Arctic Sept. 2 the Victoria-based Campbell was escorting the transports and was unable to get to its work in Spence Bay.

BACK WELLS, CLOSE

Mr. Slaght said Boothia Peninsula separates the eastern Arctic from the western Arctic and if the 315-foot icebreaker doesn't get around the peninsula's tip before the end of the month the polar ice pack will close off the channel.

The ice causing the trouble in the gulf was the winter ice and not the polar pack, he said. "We use this term because the ice forms every winter and generally melts in the summer, whereas polar pack ice is centuries old."

If the John A. Macdonald is forced to return to Halifax by the western route most likely it will spend some time in Victoria.

Vote Today At Prospect

Fourteen residents of the Prospect Lake district voted Thursday and Friday at the advance poll for today's water referendum.

The regular poll will be between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. today in the Prospect Lake elementary school.

Friday Heat Record High

Thermometers surged to 83 in the shade Friday, a record for that date in Victoria.

The previous high for Sept. 15 came in 1951, when the temperature was 82 degrees.

The hot spell, however, will ease this weekend, when smoke and haze is expected to filter out much of the sunlight.

Officers, men of Beacon Hill salute as ensign lowered for the last time

Last Frigate Fades Out

The last serving frigate of the Royal Canadian Navy retired Friday.

HMCS Beacon Hill was decommissioned in a ceremony at HMCS Dockyard. Built at Vancouver Ltd., the warship was commissioned in May, 1944.

The 23-year-old frigate will join the cold reserve fleet on the Cowwodd side of Esquimalt Harbor, and like several of her sister ships, will likely be sold for scrap.

After commissioning, the Beacon Hill served in the North Atlantic and in the English Channel on convoy and patrol duties until the end of World War Two. In May, 1945, the ship returned to Esquimalt, where she was paid off into the reserve fleet in January, 1946. Three years later, in spring of 1949, she was recommissioned for service as a training ship. She retired, again in September of that same year.

In 1955, the Beacon Hill underwent a major conversion, which included improved quarters for her sailors and the installation of new anti-submarine equipment. Upon completion of that refit, the ship continued to serve in a dual role — as a training ship for new entry sailors, and as an anti-submarine operation unit of the fleet.

In the course of her training and operational assignments, HMCS Beacon Hill covered tens of thousands of miles along the entire Pacific Coast of North America. Her crews have also taken her to South American ports, into the Alaskan area, and to the Hawaiian Islands.

The ship was under the command of Lt.-Comdr. S. C. Gould, of Victoria, and had a crew of approximately 120 officers and men.

The 300-foot ship recently completed a series of special Centennial fleet visits to various British Columbia coastal communities.

City Manager Warns:

Campbell's Loan Plan Would Kill Local Rule

By NANCY BROWN

If local governments are ever required to arrange their borrowings through the regional board it could bring an end to the present form of municipal government, Victoria's city manager Dennis Young said Friday.

He was replying to a suggestion by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell that future municipal borrowings may have to be channelled through the board because of the financial climate in eastern Canada.

CAPITAL DEBT

Mr. Young retorted in an interview: "If the municipalities are not to be masters of their own destiny in terms of the capital debt their own taxpayers are to be required to bear, then this can only lead to the doing away with local municipalities as we see them today and the regional board assuming the role of metropolitan government."

He challenged Mr. Campbell's statement that borrowings of the regional district can not impair the credit of component municipalities.

HAVE EFFECT

Mr. Young said that while regional debt may not put a statutory limit on municipal borrowing, it would have an effect in a practical way.

Financial houses, in loaning money, would take into consideration all municipal commitments, both individual and regional.

MAKES CLEAR

"Section 728 of the Municipal Act makes it abundantly clear that the monies borrowed by the regional district are a joint and several liability of the member municipalities," said Mr. Young.

He disagreed with the minister replying to a claim by the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, a U.S. trade union affiliate, that the municipality was not controlling construction and overlooking a steady source of licence revenue.

TAX BASE

"I believe that as long as a municipality continues to be well managed and maintains a strong tax base the financial institutions will continue to deal with it as they have in the past."

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox, whose original remarks to the regional board were called "mischievous" by the minister, reiterated his warnings.

IMPAIR CREDIT

"I was merely sounding a warning that the more borrowing done by the board is bound to impair the credit rating of the component municipalities," said Reeve Cox.

There are some functions that rightly belong to the region, but it must always be remembered that in pledging regional credit it will affect the credit of members of the region, the reeve said.

NO CONFIDENCE

Disagreeing with the minister's idea that future borrowing will be channelled through the region, he said, "He isn't showing much confidence in the financial standing of the municipality (Oak Bay) in which he has chosen to live."

"The only difficulty we have met is in competing in the money market with the massive borrowing programs of the senior governments."

Central Saanich will officially open its newly-built shelter and concrete entertainment floor in Centennial Park on Wallace Drive at 6 p.m. today with an outdoor supper. The structures were built as the municipality's centennial project. Coffee only will be provided.

FUTURE SUMMER CAMPERS

Children attending summer camp in B.C. in future will have to produce a medical certificate less than five days old showing they are free from communicable diseases.

This is one requirement in a new health and safety code for the estimated 212 camps operated by individuals and organizations in the province. The code, endorsed by the B.C. Campers Association, was approved by cabinet order Friday.

CODE REPLACED

A health department spokesman said the stiffer new regulations replace an old code administered by several different departments.

The new regulations set out minimum standards for toilets, showers, sewage disposal and water supply. Medical health officers must approve each camp annually before it begins operation.

ONE FOR EIGHT

Each camp must have a competent adult director and one counsellor for every eight campers. The code sets out water safety and training provisions as well as bedding changes, dining facilities, space and ventilation requirements.

Under the Health Act penalties of up to $100 maximum fine and six months imprisonment can be levied for infractions.

Harvesting operations are now being pursued with vigor at all farms on the Nanaimo River. The principal portion of the land this year was occupied in oats and barley, and the yield and quality of these cereals is said to be superior to anything of the kind ever produced on the river.—Nanaimo Tribune.

As the English Brig Roma was leaving the wharf yesterday a Fenian Islander fell overboard and for a few minutes it looked as though the poor fellow was going to join the mermaids of his native isles. He was hauled out with some difficulty by the hands on the schooner.

Esquimalt

Engineer Denies Licence Neglect

Esquimalt's engineer Friday defended his municipality's policy with regard to licensing of building trades.

Engineer William Gerry was replying to a claim by the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, a U.S. trade union affiliate, that the municipality was not controlling construction and overlooking a steady source of licence revenue.

The trades council, in its letter to Esquimalt, said only a small percentage of contractors and sub-contractors are licensed in all the municipalities within whose boundaries they operate.

VAST MAJORITY

Mr. Gerry, in a replying letter to the council, said the vast majority of house building contractors and sub-contractors doing business in Esquimalt are licensed.

Mr. Gerry went on to say that this source of control and revenue, contrary to the trades council claim, is not "casually neglected."

"It is entirely possible that the letter from the trades council was a general letter directed to all municipalities, intended for the good of all municipalities."

STRICT CONTROL

In addition to the strict control of issuing of licences, there is a continual inspection of work done in progress and inspection of the names and in general, personnel of the various contractors, to be sure that all sub-contractors are properly licensed, said Mr. Gerry.

Mr. Gerry said he resents the blanket statements and inference that the licensing regulations of the municipality are not being enforced.

"I construe this to be a misandrous type of interference in the normal workings of municipal organization," he concluded.

FIRM VIEW

Trades council secretary John Schill's letter to Esquimalt on Sept. 1 said, in part:

"In respect to applications for licences to contract building, plumbing, wiring, we are of the firm opinion that far too many such licences are being granted to so-called contractors."

"It appears that no qualifications are necessary except that the applicant be able to meet the cost of a licence."

MORE CONTROL

"We feel a stricter control over the issuance of such licences is necessary and in the best interests of the taxpayers," Mr. Schill went on.

"The indiscriminate granting of such licences is leading to a general decline in the quality of construction with resulting deterioration of whole areas and an eventual loss of tax revenue to the municipality," said Mr. Schill.

He asked that municipal regulations be amended to permit only qualified contractors to operate in the area.

Esquimalt council has already rejected the trades council claim as "unwise and misleading."

Oak Bay's veteran councillor Fred Hawes will seek the reeveship in the December municipal elections.

Kidney Machine Makes It Possible

By JOHN MATTHEWS

Mrs. May Lee was knitting furiously Friday afternoon as her blood coursed through a machine that will make the next few days perhaps the happiest and most memorable of her life.

She was working on a sweater for one of her six children in North Kamloops, whom she'll be seeing this weekend.

The rendezvous is possible because, in the nick of time last May 20, she was hooked into Royal Jubilee Hospital's kidney machines.

Her kidneys had failed. The poisons which normally are removed by those organs were building up in her bloodstream. Royal Jubilee was "the only hospital in the province which could save her life."

There are other dialysers in

—Jim Ryan

Mrs. Lee hooked into her life-saver

Vancouver but at that time they had all the patients they could possibly handle.

Happy and intermittently nervous, Mrs. Lee will be back with the four sons and two daughters who, four months ago, were not certain if they'd see their mother alive again.

BACK TUESDAY

She has to be back at Royal Jubilee by Tuesday, however, because if she does not have her blood dialysed by then she will be a very sick woman.

On Friday, she seemed a bit proud that she was among the first of Jubilee's latest kidney machine units to be connected with equipment developed in the hospital itself.

It is a large plastic tank, with meters and other devices, in which dialysing fluid is stored. The fluid removes harmful agents from the blood as it flows over the cellophane.

THREE TANKS

For $400, Jubilee now has equipment for which it otherwise would have paid close to $1,200.

In the renal dialysis unit which it opened last spring, the hospital now has three such tanks plus five "sandwiches," the devices in which the osmotic diversion of wastes actually occurs.

There has been such a heavy demand for Royal Jubilee's dialysers that the hospital is reported planning adding another three beds to its renal unit.

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Beverly Joan Holm, daughter of Mrs. S. Holm, Begbie Street, and the late Mr. A. P. Holm, to Mr. Grant Arthur Smalley, son of Mr. and Mrs.

A. K. Smalley, 2706 Dorset Road. The wedding will take place at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 23, in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay.—(Canadian Studios)

Grandmother Makes Wedding Gown

St. John's Anglican Church was the setting for the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Beverly Gayle Shaw, cross and Mr. Frederick Charles Pye.

Canon Grahame Baker officiated at the wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Shawcross, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Pye, all of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white princess style gown in heavy satin brocade topped with a long sleeved matching coat with circular train. The lovely ensemble was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. F. Jones. A silver brooch hand-crafted by her great-grandfather was her "something old" talisman while a cameo ring, gift of the groom, was her only other piece of jewelry. The bride's three-tiered veil of nylon tulle cascaded from a coronet of pearls and sequins. White gladioli and English ivy were in her bouquet.

Mrs. T. Ridgewell, bride's sister, as matron of honor, and Miss Karen Kayne of Vancouver, bridesmaid, were in floor-length empire style gowns of multi-toned pink nylon over taffeta.

Mr. William Stubbs of Duncan was best man and ushering were Mr. William Atkinson and Mr. William Nesemblem.

Mr. A. Knudson proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in The Inn.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I need some advice and fast. A woman I work with telephoned me at the office this morning and said she would not be in because she was "seriously injured in an auto accident." I asked how she could be phoning if she was "seriously hurt." She replied, "I'm not REALLY hurt, Dummy. A taxi brushed my leg so I laid down in the street and said my back was killing me. I'm going to collect enough insurance to go to Europe for two months."

When I asked her how she planned to get away with such a phony stunt she replied, "It's easy. Back injuries are hard to prove or disprove. The insurance companies would rather pay off than go through a jury trial. Public sentiment is with the little guy, you know." Then she said, "I have to hang up now and start moaning." The nurses will be in any minute to take me for X-rays.

I am thoroughly disgusted with this crook and have strong inclination to tip off the cab company or the insurance company. My husband says, "Stay out of it." I told him I was going to write to you and take your advice. What is it? — HATE CHISELERS.

Dear H.C.: Stay out of it. But don't think for a minute your friend is going to get away with anything. The insurance companies see these crooks every day. They know all tricks. Eventually they'll catch up with her and when they do she'll be a plenty sad apple.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print my letter for the benefit of the mother who has the diabetic child and is determined to keep his illness a secret because she wants him to feel "normal."

The child is normal. She is the one who is off the beam. As a mother of a nine-year-old boy who has had diabetes since he was four, I can tell that mother very fine gentleman has asked me out several times these past few months and I have had to engage a sister to stay with my little girl.

Last week the gentleman offered to pay the sister but I refused. Some friends with whom I have discussed this problem (it IS a problem because I am on a tight budget) say I should not be bashful about accepting the gentleman's offer. He is not wealthy but money is not the problem with him that it is with me. What is your advice? — FLAT PURSE.

Dear Flat: A lady pays her sister, even though the gentleman offers, and is loaded. If the lady should become engaged to the gentleman, the situation changes, and so does the advice.

Dear H.: I didn't realize how common diabetes was among youngsters until that letter appeared. Hundreds of mothers of diabetic children have written as you did. My thanks to you all.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman who works to support herself and her child. A

Newlyweds To Live In Calgary

A new home in Calgary lies ahead for Mr. and Mrs. Reginald George Cameron Kearns who were married in St. Dunstan's Anglican Church.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Don Andrew, 4456 Tyndall Ave., Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Kearns of Calgary.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white ligoda gown, fashioned on empire lines with Venetian lace forming the bodice and long sleeves. Ligoda bordered the cathedral train of Venetian lace that swept from the shoulders of the gown.

The former Sally Elizabeth Andrew had a taura of aurea borealis and pearls holding her bouffant veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pale golden talisman roses and stephanotis. Archdeacon A. E. Hendy officiated.

The bride's four attendants wore gowns of golden peau de soie, also styled on empire lines. Their outfits were complemented with cascade bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums. Bridesmaids were Miss Sheila Kearns, the groom's sister; the Misses Jennifer and Nancy Andrew, sisters of the bride, and the flower girl was Diana Andrew, another sister of the bride.

Robert Uphill, Fernie, was best man and ushering guests were Ted Kremer, Sidney; Paul Gibson, Cochrane, Alta., and the bride's brother, Richard Andrew.

Ken Robinson, Colwood, proposed the toast to the bride at the reception, held in the church hall.

The wedding cake which centred the head table had been made and decorated by the groom's mother.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the northwestern states, the bride donned a moss green corduroy suit accented with brown accessories.

A Yukon Cow Is Christened Karen

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

There's a cow in the Yukon called Karen, and another called Sheila—both quite young and both named after the midwives who helped to pull them into the world.

Karen Osmars and Sheila Thomas are two of a quintet of University of Victoria students who spent the summer at Burwash Lodge near Whitehorse.

Hired as waitresses, they seem to have turned successfully to a wild variety of other duties, as well as assisting at the delivery of the lodge cows.

Karen and Sheila, along with Marilyn Nicolls, Margie Reid and Rayanne Squires, also manned the gasoline pumps, drove two-ton trucks, and the tractor; provided entertainment for busloads of tourists by shoeing a greedy cow out of the kitchen with mops on numerous occasions; and also did some of the cooking.

From their descriptions of some of the delicacies of the north, their menus might not be altogether appetizing.

The moose roast and moose steaks sound fine (though "the smell of moose meat hanging in the basement was just awful all over the lodge") but they report that moose nose is considered the choicest tidbit.

As for fish, the Indians claim fish heads as true gourmet fare, and the part just behind the eyes is best. Then there's soap berry ice cream, which the Indians eat in great quantities.

"It's made with dreadful little berries, sour and bitter, that leave a horrible taste of soap in your mouth. They're whipped up with cream and things and the Indians gobble bowl after bowl of it."

Though they worked hard, often starting at 5 in the morning, the girls had time to cram in an amazing variety of spare-time activities.

"I'd always thought a glacier was smooth ice, but on the galloping part there are placards of ice 200 feet high, formed by being shoved and pushed with the movement," Karen explained.

"And the glacier is striped, with an area of clear ice and other parts with gravel in it from the tributary glaciers that have moved down. From the air you can count the tributaries by counting the stripes."

The girls all loved the country.

"The scenery is just beautiful. It's so untouched. The lodge was in a valley, with the huge peaks of the St. Elias mountains on one side and the rolling hills of another mountain range on the other."

"And the lake was so lovely, it changed color every hour, from a muddy grey to blues and greens. Then when the first frosts came the mountains were red from the fireweed and the trees were a brilliant golden yellow."

Their enthusiasm extends to the people who were all so kind to the five girls from only place on the highway to Victoria. They met a 53-year-old prospector who came to the Yukon as a boy in the Klondike gold rush, and loved to tell them stories of Klondike Kate and the gold rush characters.

The girls had a tremendous admiration for the Allingens who owned the lodge — even though Mr. Allinger was fond of saying "there are only two kinds of waitresses, those who don't work and those who break things."

The fact that Burwash Lodge was the girls' work was the Souvenirs, including a tin of Yukon dust marked "22 Off," and beaded moccasins with fox fur, made to measure by Burwash Indians, will help remind five University of Victoria students of their wonderful summer in the Yukon. The ex-waitress students are, from left, Sheila Thomas, Marilyn Nicolls, Margie Reid, Karen Osmars and Rayanne Squires. —(Bud Kinsman)

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Dr. E. S. Graham, director of studies at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, and Mrs. Graham entertained at the cocktail hour yesterday evening at their home on Uplands Road. Their guests last evening, and at a party last week, included members of the faculty of Royal Roads and of the University of Victoria.

Forthcoming Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew T. Johnson, 3589 Quadra Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their youngest daughter, Patricia Constance, to Mr. Brian Bartholomew McGarvey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James McGarvey, Benselough Augher County Tyrone, Ireland. The wedding will take place at 7 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 7, in Sacred Heart Church with Father J. Phaneuf officiating.

Huddleston-Kelway

Exchange Vows at Cathedral

Following their recent wedding in Christ Church Cathedral, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid Huddleston left for a honeymoon in California.

Rev. Roy Hout officiated at the service uniting Joan Sally Kelway, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelway, 55 Lotus St. and Robert Reid Huddleston, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huddleston, 610 Bryden Court.

Antique gladioli decorated the church for the ceremony. Organist Richard Proudman played "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length sheath gown of organza complemented by a sheer coat. The coat, styled with a jewel neckline and full angel sleeves, featured a soft sweeping train appliqued with tiny Venetian lace flowers. A hand-rolled veil of silk illusion mistled from a tiny floral headpiece. She carried a bouquet of apricot gladioli.

Birds Leave

STRASSBOURG, France (AP)—If there's truth to the saying that storks bring good luck by nesting in your chimney, residents of Alsace had better watch out. They've put up artificial nests and imported young storks, but still the population of the long-legged birds is off one-third from 20 years ago. Bird experts say bad weather has cut the hatch rate but add some storks are just flying off to other countries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Squire, 445 Brookhaven Drive, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miriam Fay, to Mr. Paul Alan Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pitker of Oakland, California. The marriage is to take place Sept. 23, at 2 p.m. in Wilkenson Road United Church. Miss Squire is a graduate of Vancouver General Hospital, and her fiancé is a graduate of the University of Colorado. Following the marriage the couple plans to live in Lemox, Illinois.

The Racquettes, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Racquet Club, are sponsoring a semi-formal dinner dance to be held Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. in the club badminton hall.

Feature of the evening will be a strolling fashion show arranged by Woodwards, during the dinner hour.

Conveners of the dance are Mrs. Donald Cameron and Mrs. Peter Meredith, with Mrs. E. L. Jones and Mrs. Jack Glover in charge of table decorations. In charge of tickets and reservations are Miss Heather Teller and Mrs. Arthur Proctor. Mrs. Helen McLean is arranging dinner.

Hall decorations will be done by Miss Dorothy Luten, and Mrs. Gordon Bell is in charge of publicity.

This is the first social event sponsored by the auxiliary for members of the club and their friends.

Faces Peer from Trees In Forest of Ghosts

Story and photos
by AGNES FLETT

KELSEY BAY — It won't be long before the Sayward Valley and this little community will be known throughout the world as The Valley of Faces.

Trees throughout the local woods have been adorned with more than 100 oval slabs of timber, each carefully painted into the faces of women, men, laughing old couples... even a skull.

The unique project is that of Dutch-born Hetty Fredericksen, who came here a year ago from Chilliwack.

If started as a hobby, Hetty, well-known in Chilliwack as hostess of the ghost house, organized a paint-in recently for children and adults here.

She gave the lessons and for her canvases chose the inexpensive material available — slabs cut diagonally from timber in the old logging ground with a power saw.

She found the slabs lent themselves readily to portraits, the wood grain fitted in well to the lines of people's faces.

Following the paint-in, Hetty concentrated on painting wholly on slabs, using people from Alert Bay as models for portraits. After painting a few, she decided some people might take offence at the crude, hewn portraits of themselves.

So she switched to portraits drawn from her vivid imagination.

Tourists have so far flocked to see her work, but Hetty and her husband Doug hope to one day have 1,000 faces nailed to trees in the little forest. "This should make it a wonderful tourist attraction for people in other countries," she said.

She explained that with a thousand faces, visitors would really have the impression they were being watched as they trod through the dim forest.

"What an eerie feeling that would be," she laughed.

The couple last week auctioned some faces, the proceeds for the Centennial Recreation Centre fund.

After much practice, Hetty is ready to start once again on real-life portraits.

Anyone can have their portrait done on a rough wooden slab... how about it?

'Resources Before Homeowners'

By EUTH McKEILLAR

COURTENAY — "The government is giving the country away, it's the biggest fire sale in history," Ald. George McKnight of Port Alberni charged at a special regional college meeting here Friday night.

Sponsored by the Courtenay District Electors Association, the meeting was held to discuss why I am Voting No on the Regional College Issue. Ald. McKnight was referring to the financing arrangement of the proposed $12,000,000 college, one-third to be met by the federal government, one-third by the province and the remainder split between nine districts north of the Malahat. "The cost of education should be lifted from the homeowners and a tax imposed on the extraction of natural resources," Ald. McKnight told a well-attended meeting in the Courtenay Legion Hall.

Public Pays

"The next step will be the public paying for vocational schools," Port Alberni School trustee Ron Coull said.

Their charges were called "outrageous" by Brian Walker of the Courtenay branch of the Regional College Co-ordinating Committee.

"Some of the things said by the speakers are outrageous. We have never said you must vote for the college."

Follow Marsh

Courtenay's Ald. Harry Harris said there had been insufficient research on the regional college. "The chamber of commerce does not feel the recommendation of the Marsh Report were followed," he said.

"We need a university in Nanaimo, Kelowna and Prince George, financed provincially and federally. Then we should decide where we need small community colleges," Ald. Harris said.

Mill Strike Has Short Life

CAMPBELL RIVER — About 1,100 Elk Falls employees walked off the job at 3:30 p.m. Friday and picketed the Crown Zellerbach operation. Shortly after 4 p.m. pickets were withdrawn and the men started trickling back to work.

The International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers members walked off in support of 250 maintenance men at the plant who protested that repair jobs were being given to outside contractors.

Union and company officials met Friday night and came to an undisclosed agreement. Full operations resumed by mid-night.

Logging Companies Close Access Roads

MacMillan Bloedel announced all access through its lands is being cancelled for the weekend. The reason is high fire hazard. The company has stopped work at Franklin River and Cameron Divisions.

● B.C. Forest Products Ltd. announced Friday that because of slash burning and logging roads under repair the Cayuse main line gate will be closed to hunters this weekend.

Odds Were Surmountable

DUNCAN — Temperatures climbed into the high 80s as visitors and dignitaries took part in the opening ceremonies of Cowichan District Hospital Friday afternoon.

Claude Green, chairman of the Cowichan District Hospital Association, told the gathering "It has taken a lot of time, effort and compromise to get a new hospital. This is a red letter day for everyone in the district."

"It was two decades ago that it first became apparent that the King's Daughters' Hospital was fast becoming overcrowded, and by present-day standards obsolete. Today our dream is accomplished."

A telegram from former minister of health and welfare, Eric Martin, who had dealings with the new hospital project in the past, stated "Congratulations... you have overcome what seemed to be almost insurmountable odds."

The new $4,000,000 hospital was opened by Minister of Health Wesley Black.

He said "I want to congratulate everyone who had anything to do with building this hospital. The new concept of hospitals in British Columbia is similar to the new Cowichan district hospital. I hope others have the same foresight in building future hospitals."

The new hospital has a unique sculpture — a large sunburst design on the front of the building, designed by John Kormer.

The sculpture was unveiled by

Dobbyn

Don Hammond, chairman of the construction committee. Mr. Hammond said "The sculpture is a symbol of light and hope, and of life itself."

The invocation for the new hospital was given by the Rev. G. A. Kerr, chairman of the hospital chapel committee, Ministerial Association.

Much of the groundwork for the new hospital was laid several years ago by such people as Sir Philip Livingston, General C. A. P. Murison, Gunnar Nelsen and L. B. Bailey, who promoted the foundation of the districts and stressed the need for a new hospital.

Credit should be given to the late Elaine Dobbyn, who served as vice-chairman of the hospital board and a councillor on the North Cowichan Council.

Mrs. Dobbyn never ceased in her relentless efforts to make the hospital become a reality.

The new hospital will open with 126 adult and children's beds on the second and third floors.

Twenty-five more beds can be easily obtained in the future on these two floors, by installing plumbing and electrical fixtures in the wards.

In addition to this there is fourth floor shell which in future can be finished to house an additional 37 beds.

Up to 300 beds could be obtained by additional floors for which foundations have been installed.

CAMPBELL RIVER — An RCMP spokesman said charges would probably be laid if 22-year-old George McPherson, of Campbell River, dies as a result of being beaten in a brawl early Friday morning.

The brawl was on the government wharf. McPherson late Friday night was on the critical list in Campbell River Hospital with internal injuries.

Bill Goodman and Brian Salders were treated at the hospital for hand cuts and released.

Quit NATO Forces—NDP

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada should withdraw its military support of the North Atlantic Treaty organization and press for a complete overhaul of the defence pact, says T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party.

France May Vote On Full Pullout

PARIS (Reuters)—A close supporter of President de Gaulle said Friday France may hold a referendum next year on whether to pull out completely from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

France already has withdrawn from NATO's military structure. Writing in the weekly Notre République, organ of the left-wing Gaullists, Louis Vallon said 1968 would be a decisive year in the development of French foreign policy.

He said it was possible that de Gaulle would consult the nation and get an endorsement to leave the alliance officially in order to clear the way for fuller rapprochement between Eastern and Western Europe.

Saanich Refusal Of Grant 'Right'

Despite two pleas from the Victoria Visitors Bureau, Saanich council "probably was right" in turning down its request for a grant, says Courtney Haddock, retiring president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

He said he was tired of seeing taxpayers' money spent on the tourist industry.

"Homeowners are not interested in contributing to the success of your business," added Mr. Haddock. "It is time the tourist industry started acting like an industry."

He made the remarks at the chamber's 104th annual meeting. William Armstrong, a banker, was sworn in as the new president.

Saanich council three times this year has turned down the visitors bureau's request for $3,000, twice after open pleas from the organization.

The bureau said it would have to cancel its fall advertising campaign if it didn't get the money. "It also feared other municipalities in future years would use Saanich's decision as a precedent."

Mr. Haddock said he was "getting to be an unhappy taxpayer" and would be even unhappier if tax money was spent on a convention centre here.

"If the convention centre uses taxpayers' money, I'm going to be mad," he told the meeting.

Bonner Will Greet Royal Danish Pair

Attorney-General Robert Bonner will welcome Princess Margrethe of Denmark and her husband Prince Henrik on their arrival at 2:25 p.m. Sept. 25 at Victoria's airport.

Mr. Bonner will stand in for Premier Bennett at the welcoming ceremonies for the royal couple because the premier will be in Europe on a three week business trip at that time.

The motorcade will travel by the scenic marine drive to Cook Street and then to Rockland and Government House where the Prince and Princess will stay overnight as guests of Lieutenant Governor Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes.

On Sept. 26, at 10 a.m. the royal visitors arrive at the legislative buildings where they are again greeted by Mr. Bonner and invited to sign the golden book in the premier's office.

At 10:30 a.m. the royal couple arrives at City Hall for a half-hour visit and after a short rest at Government House drive to the Empress Hotel for a government luncheon.

At 2:10 p.m. they leave the hotel for the airport and a flight to Vancouver.

Garden Notes

So, Root Them Out!

By M. V. CHESNUT

I imagine quite a few foresighted gardeners put in seeds of wallflowers and Sweet William this spring for blooming next year. These are ordinarily grown in coldframes or in outdoor seed beds to make sturdy young plants for setting out in the flower beds this fall after the summer-blooming annuals have been pulled up and discarded.

One common mistake lies in allowing these biennial and perennial subjects to remain undisturbed all summer. The general belief is that, by thinning the plants to give them plenty of elbow room and by leaving the remaining plants undisturbed, they receive no shock or setback from transplanting and therefore make sturdier specimens than those which have been moved.

This is perfectly true of vegetable plants, tomatoes and the summer-flowering annuals, but it is NOT true of our biennial and perennial plants. It is far better with these subjects, and particularly with wallflowers and Sweet Williams, to transplant them at least once during the summer, and many good gardeners give them two moves.

The idea in such transplanting is to break or cut through the longer and more straggling roots, compelling the plant to grow a compact mass of fibrous roots. Such plants can be taken up in the fall with a good ball of soil around their roots and will suffer very little setback in their move to their flowering quarters. They take hold more readily and are therefore better equipped to withstand the rigors of winter. This interim transplanting is, in effect, a form of root pruning, and I had better explain how this benefits the plant.

I imagine every gardener has, at one time or another, pinched the tip of a lanky plant to make it branch out and grow bushy, or cut back a young hedge to make it thicken out at the bottom. Any gardener who has ever mistakenly beheaded a tomato plant to "throw all the strength into the fruit" must have been appalled by the variable forest of side shoots which popped but after the beheading. And so we learn this basic lesson: Pruning encourages branching.

It isn't so generally realized, though, that this same principle applies to a plant's roots as well as to its topgrowth. With most plants, if the tips of the roots are pinched off, the roots throw out branch roots, making a bushier root system with many more "mouths" to take in moisture and nutrients. Such a plant transplants far more successfully than one with a sparse, straggly root system.

There are several other applications of this principle besides the conditioning of wallflowers and Sweet Williams. For instance, if you are planning on moving any shrubs or young trees next spring, you can condition them now for their move by severing the root tips with a sharp spade driven straight down in a circle around the plant.

Dogwoods and birch trees are notoriously difficult to transplant from the wild, yet specimens purchased from a plant nursery can be moved into your garden with every prospect of surviving. This is because the wildlings make a long, straggly root system; it is almost impossible to get it out of the ground without inflicting a fatal injury.

The nursery-grown birch or dogwood, on the other hand, has been dug up and replanted every year or every second year throughout its life, and as each transplanting constitutes a form of root pruning, such "tame" plants make compact, well-branched root systems which can be dug up and transported to a customer's garden with very little injury or setback.

ARTHUR HOPPE Cheers Up

The Columnists Are Back!

Phew! By the skin of our teeth, fellow Americans, we've muddled through Labor Day and passed and now we all know what we think once again. For the columnists are back from vacation.

Oh, a few hundred pundits dutifully stood by their typewriters during July and August, grimly grinding out opinions and instructions on this crisis or that catastrophe. But the ship of State was definitely short-handed, virtually rudderless.

You can imagine the desperate straits the President was in during the long, blank summer.

"War has broken out in the Middle East," Mr. President, says the Secretary of State. "What do you think we ought to do?"

"How do I know what I think?" snaps the President irritably. "Walter Lippman's gone to the seashore."

It's no wonder that at the height of the racial riots, the President asked the Nation to pray for divine guidance. Whom else was there to turn to?

Worse, whole weeks would go by without a single syndicated expert analyzing the mood of the country.

On arising each morning, millions of American men, women and children would frown thoughtfully. "I wonder what mood I'm in today," they'd say. And they'd search fruitlessly through the paper.

There's nothing like not knowing what mood you're in for weeks on end to make you moody.

Thus by mid-July the impact of The Great Opinion Shortage became severe. When you realize that the average syndicated opinion maker makes up 202.3 opinions a year (each of them different), the effects of an extended vacation shutdown should be obvious.

During July alone, the gross number of manufactured opinions dropped 2763 below the previous month. And by August I there simply weren't enough opinions to go around.

In Duluth, S.D., a survey showed, only 23 persons had an opinion on whether Moise Tshombe should be freed. In Wenatchee, Wyo., a scant 7 citizens knew whether the Federal Reserve rates should be raised. While in Waco, Ark., a grand total of 3 people held an opinion on which side to root for in Red China. And they had to share that.

But hardly a hit, of course, were high Government officials. With few columnists left around to tell them what to do daily or thrice weekly, they simply didn't know what to do. The country floundered.

So serious did the situation become by the last week in August that the President was forced to intervene. And in an admirable attempt to set an example for the nation in this emergency, he made up an opinion himself.

But the President, like most of us, is not a professional opinion maker. And his opinion, which he unveiled at a press conference, unfortunately showed it.

It was his opinion, he said, proudly, that things actually weren't too bad and that the future looked bright.

Now that the columnists are back it shouldn't take them more than a week to set him straight on that one.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

'True Horror of War'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — "If I dropped dead tomorrow," said Richard Lester, who directed the two Beagle films, The Knack and Something Funny Happened on the Way to the Forum, "I would like to be remembered and judged by How I Won the War."

The only name stars are Beagle John Lennon and young Michael Crawford. I didn't quite understand the idea behind the film, which I saw in London, except that it is anti-war and anti-hero. I doubt whether John Wayne will ever again feel comfortable making another war film in which he plays the brave, dashing gentleman who leads his men to victory and death. After How I Won the War, there could even be a titter at the sight of a battlefield strewn with bodies of thousands of extras. In Lester's picture, only the principals die.

"My idea was to make an anti-war film which would in no way glorify war. I believe that previous so-called 'anti-war' films, in some way encouraged war, in spite of themselves, by making war seem glamorous or tragic and thus noble. I did not want to make a film that was a tank opera. I did not want to approach the subject of war with any kind of nostalgia. I did not want one causal death in this film. I did not want death to seem so important. But when the main characters are killed, it is seen in complete detail to convey the true horror of it all."

Lester added that he wants all sorts of people to see his film. "Not just the young people, most of whom are against war to begin with. For me, this is my best effort, to show the horrors of war, to express my feelings and to try to effect some change in the world." One thing is sure. Audiences will be violently for the film or against it.

To make a film devoid of heroics, nostalgia and general escapism, Mr. Lester acknowledged (at my insistence) that he has made a picture that some viewers might find themselves squirming through. How I Won the War offers no relief. At the beginning you think it is going to be a comedy of the same genre as Lester's Beagle films. "But although I want to make war seem ludicrous, I didn't want to make such an entertainingly funny film that people would lose sight of the fact that the subject, war, is horrific. So while the comic aspects are included in the film, they are never given a chance to really develop. Replacing the comedy, is a stark brutality — a brutality without the relief of glamor and nostalgia."

At the moment, Mr. Lester, who hails from Philadelphia and gained a reputation in television before making movies, is in London cutting Petulia which he made in San Francisco with Julie Christie and George C. Scott. He wouldn't talk about Petulia, but he admitted the concept of the film had changed several times in the last few weeks. "AR I can tell you it's a simple love story," Dick offered.

The director affects multi-colored pants — yellow, orange and red along with black turtleneck shirts. He is balding, but the hair he has is long. After eight films, he is now in a position where he wants to experiment with "off-beat," perhaps non-commercial stuff. I've made $400,000 for my distributors all in all, and now I think the film industry owes me my chance to experiment. Television has made it possible for films to be an art form, since films no longer have a utilitarian part in our culture."

Quote from Faye Dunaway who has scored with Warren Beatty in Bonnie and Clyde — "I want no part of marriage until I'm a star." She'll be safe with Mr. Beatty.

I wasn't surprised to read that Audrey Hepburn and Mel Ferrer are lovely doves again in Switzerland, although her lawyers believe she is still going ahead with the separation. Frankly, I don't care. They were parted too much by their respective careers and this was part of the trouble which started, or let's say, continued, while Audrey was in Paris a year ago making Two for the Road. Now I understand why she insisted on such a closed set. A pity because it resulted in little publicity for what proved a good film. When so much ballyhoo can tell a bad film, you can imagine what it can do for something good.

SYDNEY HARRIS

The Trained Mind

If there is one species of human being whom I fear worse than the bubonic plague, it is the man armed with "facts and figures." A handful of statistics under his arm and a windy hollow between his ears.

The two commonly go together, I have found. This is not to say that understanding should not rest on facts, but that too many facts can swamp our understanding.

At lunch the other day, a college president was telling me about the time he was a graduate student at Cornell, when Sir Arthur Eddington, the scientist, came to visit the campus.

The student was assigned to take the honored guest on a tour of Niagara Falls, which college officials thought would impress him. The lad boned up on all the facts and figures about the Falls, and as they stood watching the water, he said, "Do you know that 120,000,000 cubic feet (or whatever the figure was) of water goes over the Falls every second?"

Sir Arthur shrugged and said, "What's to prevent it?" This is the attitude of perceptive minds, as opposed to merely absorbent ones. The perceptive mind is interested in the underlying principle; the absorbent mind is interested only in memorizing and repeating an assortment of statistics.

It is significant, I think, that German scholarship is the most famous in the world.

For centuries, the Germans have collected more facts, and arranged them more systematically, than any other people. Yet this never prevented them from following pernicious political philosophies, from Hegel to Hitler.

We in America also have begun to acquire an excessive devotion to brute facts, and a corresponding distrust of "mere theory." Yet it is a basic scientific truth that facts must fit into some theory in order to be intelligible. The splitting of the atom could not have begun without Einstein's abstract theory of matter and energy.

Our suspicion of theoreticians has led us to place our faith in the "practical" man with the "know-how." But

Bankruptcy Hits Rome

ROME (Reuters) — The ancient city of Rome is bankrupt, it was announced Friday. The mayor told the Italian government that unless the city receives an immediate loan, municipal services will have to shut down.

"Without your decisive and quick intervention, the municipality of Rome, for the first time in its centuries of history, will have to close its shutters," Mayor Amerigo Petrucci told Treasury Minister Emilio Colombo.

His plea was made in a "confidential" letter published on the front page of a Rome newspaper Friday.

He asked for about $21,000,000 by today. The city, besieged by workers worried about their pay, has only $210,000 cash on hand, he said.

Budget deficits are common to Italian municipalities, and Rome's deficit probably will merely be carried over into next year as is often done. Rome continues to pile up new debts just to pay the interest on its old debts.

Chinese Hold Fire at Pass

NEW DELHI (AP) — Chinese gunners along Nafu Pass held their fire Friday although their government has not yet replied to three Indian notes suggesting a ceasefire in the border clash which broke out last Monday.

The Indian defence ministry said the Chinese guns have been silent since Thursday noon and the Indians have maintained a self-imposed ceasefire since Wednesday.

India has proposed, also, a meeting of sector commanders of Indian and Chinese units posted on the Tibet-Sikkim border.

What Will They Do With Leftovers?

OTTAWA (Special)—Comment-of-the-capital-week:

Former John Diefenbaker "loyalist" and still Conservative MP for Winnipeg South, L. B. "Bud" Sherman in learning that the 130 or so members of the parliamentary press gallery are holding a black tie banquet Monday night for the ex-chief:

"They spent 11 years carrying him up—now they're having him for dinner."

Faced Army Plot Questions Nasser's Deputy Kills Self

CAIRO (UPI)—Former Egyptian vice-president Abdul Hakim Amer committed suicide by poison rather than face questioning about an alleged army plot against President Nasser. It was officially announced here Friday.

The 45-year-old former deputy commander of Egyptian armed forces, disgraced

after the Arab war with Israel, had been under house arrest for alleged complicity in the plot.

An official spokesman said Amer swallowed "a quantity of poisonous narcotic matter" when army officers came to his house Wednesday to "invite him to attend the investigation" of the alleged plot.

He was rushed to a hospital where his condition began to improve, but he took another fatal dose of poison which he had apparently brought with him, the spokesman said.

Amer had been Nasser's friend since boyhood, and he was the president's heir-apparent under the Egyptian constitution.

Radio Cairo said the commander in chief and chief of staff of the armed forces went to Amer's house to question him about the plot Wednesday. It said Amer excused himself and went into the bathroom, where he swallowed the first dose of pills.

Amer was rushed to a hospital, his stomach was pumped out and his condition improved Thursday, the radio said. Then he suffered a sudden relapse and died after visiting the bathroom, where he had evidently taken more pills, according to a medical examination.

Forces of Regionalism New Threat for Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—Confederation is threatened by contemporary forces of regionalism that go beyond Canada's French East, Quebec's federal Liberals were told Friday.

Prof. Gerald Ford, sociologist at Laval University, told a thinkers' conference sponsored by the Liberals that there is a worldwide trend to regionalism.

He said the federal government should take care to act through the provinces in dealing with regional issues or risk destroying Canada. (See also Page 2).

"Regionalism is a new manifestation of democratic values and involves a re-assessment of all forms of government, including Canadian federalism. 'It is the affirmation of citizens' wish for collective control over their own affairs.'"

Nothing was less certain in this new context than Confederation and it would have to be remade "even without the presence of the French Fact in Canada."

OLD VESSEL

"Confederation is an old vessel that is being broken apart by the new wine of planning and democracy of participation."

The solution was neither greater centralization of federal powers nor greater autonomy for the provinces, but a new balance of power.

The balance should be between federal, provincial and regional government involving a central government, possibly run directly by the provinces.

The central government should deal only with provincial governments which would in turn have relations with regional government.

Newfoundland Rockburst

Body Found, Two Hunted

ST. LAWRENCE, Nfld. (CP)—Searchers digging through rubble 500 feet below the surface of the Newfoundland Fluorspar Co. mine here Friday night recovered the body of one of three Fluorspar miners killed in a rockburst earlier in the day.

The company said the body of Noel Warren, 24, was recovered and that the search for the other bodies would continue. Mine manager Rupert Wis-man said the three were believed killed about 1:20 a.m. in a "work room," about half-way down the 1,000-foot mine, when up to 1,000 tons of rock crashed down on the area.

"We don't hold any hope that any of them are alive," Mr. Wiseman said.

The other two missing men are Robert Edwards, 36, a foreman, and John Slaney, 35. All were married, with a total of 18 children.

Courtenay Anti-College Meeting

'Relieve Homeowners, Tax Our Resources'

By RUTH McKELLAR

COURTENAY—"The government is giving the country away, it's the biggest fire sale in history," Ald. George McKnight of Port Alberni charged at a special regional college meeting here Friday night.

Victim Critical

CAMPBELL RIVER — As RCMP spokesmen said charges would probably be laid if 22-year-old George McPhoe, of Campbell River, dies as a result of being beaten in a brawl early Friday morning.

The brawl was on the government wharf.

McPhoe late Friday night was on the critical list in Campbell River Hospital with internal injuries.

Bill Goodman and Brian Snidera were treated at the hospital for hand cuts and released.

Mill Strike Has Short Life

CAMPBELL RIVER — About 2:00 P.M. Friday employees walked off the job at 3:30 p.m. Friday and picketed the Crown Mill operation. Shortly after 9 p.m. pickets were withdrawn and the men started trickling back to work.

The International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers members walked off in support of 180 maintenance men at the plant who protested that repair jobs were being given to outside contractors.

Union and company officials met Friday night and came to an undisclosed agreement. Full operations resumed by midnight.

Emergency Calls During Ceremony

Odds Were Surmountable

By JEAN MacGREGOR

DUNCAN — Temperatures climbed into the high 80s as visitors and dignitaries took part in the opening ceremonies of Cowichan district hospital Friday afternoon.

Claude Green, chairman of the Cowichan District Hospital Association, told the gathering "It has taken a lot of time, effort and compromise to get a new hospital. This is a red letter day for everyone in the district."

"It was two decades ago that the King's Daughters' Hospital was fast becoming overcrowded, and by present-day standards obsolete. Today our dream is accomplished."

A telegram from former Minister of Health and Welfare, Eric Martin, who had dealings with the new hospital project in the past, stated "Congratulations ... you have overcome what seemed to be almost insurmountable odds."

The new $4,000,000 hospital was opened by Minister of Health Wesley Black.

He said "I want to congratulate everyone who had anything to do with building this hospital. The new concept of hospitals in British Columbia is similar to the new Cowichan district hospital. I hope others have the same foresight in building future hospitals."

Mr. Green was presented with a gavel from F. W. Laird, chairman of the B.C. Hospital Association.

The presentation of the key to the hospital was made by R. G. Saunders, representing Smith Bros. and Wilson, contractors to L. M. Humphrey, of Townley, Matheson and Partners, architects.

Mr. Humphrey in turn gave the key to Mr. Green. The new hospital has a unique sculpture — a large sunburst design on the front of the building, designed by John Korner.

The sculpture was unveiled by Don Hammond, chairman of the construction committee. Mr. Hammond said "The sculpture is a symbol of light and hope, and of life itself."

The invocation for the new hospital was given by the Rev. G. A. Kerr, chairman of the hospital chapel committee, Ministerial Association.

Much of the groundwork for the new hospital was laid several years ago by such people as Sir Philip Livingston, General C. A. P. Murison, Gunnar Nelsen and L. B. Bailey, who promoted the formation of the districts and stressed the need for a new hospital.

Credit should be given to the late Elaine Dobbey, who served as vice-chairman of the hospital board and a councillor on the North Cowichan Council.

Mrs. Dobbey never ceased in her relentless efforts to make the hospital become a reality.

The new hospital will open with 125 adult and children's beds on the second and third floors.

Twenty-five more beds can be easily obtained in the future on these two floors, by installing plumbing and electrical fixtures in the wards.

In addition to this there is fourth floor shell which in future can be finished to house an additional 37 beds.

Up to 300 beds could be obtained by additional floors for which foundations have been installed.

Hetty works while other faces watch woodenly

Faces Peer from Trees In Forest of Ghosts

Story and photos by AGNES FLETT

KELSEY HAY — It won't be long before the Sayward Valley and this little community will be known throughout the world as The Valley of Faces.

Trees throughout the local woods have been adorned with more than 100 oval slabs of timber, each carefully painted into the faces of women, men, laughing old couples ... even a skull.

The unique project in that of Dutch-born Hetty Frederiksen, who came here a year ago from Chilliwack.

It started as a hobby. Hetty, well known in Chilliwack as hostess of the ghost house, organized a paint-in recently for children and adults here.

She gave the lessons and for her canvases chose the inexpensive material available — slabs cut diagonally from timber in the old logging ground with a power saw.

She found the slabs lent themselves readily to portraits, the wood grain fitted in well to the lines of people's faces.

Following the paint-in, Hetty concentrated on painting wholly on slabs, using people from Alert Bay as models for portraits. After painting a few, she decided some people might take offence at the crude, hewn portraits of themselves.

So she switched to portraits drawn from her vivid imagination.

Tourists have so far flocked to see her work, but Hetty and her husband Doug hope to one day have 1,000 faces nailed to trees in the little forest. "This should make it a wonderful tourist attraction for people in other countries," she said.

She explained that with a thousand faces, visitors would really have the impression they were being watched as they trod through the dim forest.

"What an eerie feeling that would be," she laughed.

The couple last week auctioned some faces, the proceeds for the Centennial Recreation Centre fund.

After much practice, Hetty is ready to start once again on real-life portraits.

Anyone can have their portrait done on a rough wooden slab ... how about it?

Alcoholism Studied

DUNCAN — The first institute on alcoholism and alcohol studies will be held here Sept. 28 to 30.

It is sponsored by the Family Court Committee of Duncan, in co-operation with the Alcoholism Foundation.

Sessions both days will be held at St. John's Anglican Church Hall, and chairman will be Ross Modest of the Family Court Committee.

This institute is designed for citizens of Duncan and the surrounding areas, who seek understanding of the disease concept of alcoholism, so they more capably help the alcoholic in the home, in industry or through the welfare, public health and corrections agencies.

Main speakers during the two-day affair will be E. D. McRae, executive director, Alcoholism Foundation of B.C.; R. L. Clarkson, supervisor, Island regional office, the local probation officer and a Victoria social worker.

Duncan Mayor Jack Dobson and North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton will give addresses during the conference.

Logging Companies Close Access Roads

MacMillan Bloedel announced all access through its lands is being cancelled for the weekend. The reason is high fire hazard. The company has stopped work at Franklin River and Cameron Divisions.

B.C. Forest Products Ltd., announced Friday that because of slash burning and logging roads under repair the Cayuse main line gate will be closed to hunters this weekend.

Sitters and strollers along waterfront walk

They Tread Softly Where Gulls Glide

Story and photos
from Jim Ryan

A leisurely stroll along the winding Dallas Road waterfront has for years been an invigorating daily tonic for Victorians young and old.

From early in the morning to late in the evening, the blacktopped path overlooking the pebbled beach below is being worn smooth by the feet of sightseeing strollers.

The sheltered benches overlooking the water act as a focal point for residents who meet as strangers and part as new friends.

For Mr. and Mrs. William D. Roberts of 110 Douglas, the waterfront stroll was the bait that hooked them on Victoria as a retirement city.

They decided to spend a month in Victoria from their home in Saskatoon in January, 1966, to see if this was the place to which they wanted to retire.

"Victoria won hands down," said Mr. Roberts. "We like to walk, and Victoria is the only place in Canada, outside Quebec City, where one can enjoy it. It's magnificent."

The regular daily strollers form themselves, said Mr. Roberts, into "little cliques and groups, and talk about the past. We have never met anyone we knew from the Prairies on these walks, but I'm sure many people run into old friends."

For Mrs. Roberts, much of the charm of the waterfront lies in the fact it is relatively free of scenery-blocking high-rise apartments.

For British-born social worker Christine Allison of Montreal, a jaunt along Dallas

Road was sandwiched in during a one-day visit here.

But the "complete naturalness" of the scenery may have a lasting effect on her. "I might well think of moving out here," she said.

Donald Jacobs of 310 Fifth Street finds his daily two-mile hike along the cliffs plain "good exercise."

Sisters Mrs. Charlotte Luck, 45 Moss Street, and Miss Alma Rowe, who came to Victoria from Rugby, England, three years ago, are out along the waterfront on a daily schedule, enjoying the "peaceful atmosphere and the beautiful park."

On some days, their brisk walks span the morning, afternoon and evening, and they cover a good bit of mileage in a day.

Says Mrs. Winifred Costar, 107 Cook Street: "I'm out walking almost every day. It's marvelous along here."

Urban Renewal Study Approved

Waterfront May Bloom

An urban renewal study of 55 acres in the Wharf Street waterfront area will start early in October, city manager Dennis Young said Thursday.

Word was received Thursday at City Hall, from Liberal MP David Gross that Labor Minister Nicholson had approved what Mayor Hugh Stephen has called "the single most important step Victoria has ever taken to rehabilitate the city and cement the downtown core as a part of the capital region."

The $80,000 economic survey, which could be the first step in a massive renewal scheme, will show the possibilities of enticing private investment into the area, using public funds as leverage.

Mr. Young said the speed with which the study had been endorsed by both senior governments showed the degree of interest they had in the idea.

Mr. Young said he was confident that the study would point the way to changes which would have a far-reaching effect upon the area's economy.

City planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh warned that without the scheme, Victoria's position as a business centre would be lost to suburban areas.

"Unless we keep things moving, we shall lose our position by default," he said.

He said the Ocean Cement Co., which operates in the area, had already given an undertaking to move all its operations to its Bay Street area, although there was no firm date on the undertaking.

"We have to find where our money can be used to most effect in upgrading the area, and so attracting private capital," said Mr. Greenhalgh.

The study, he said, would deal with the possibility of putting a convention centre in the area, and show what alterations needed to be made in the area.

"There are several small industrial operations in the area which are quite unsuitable," he said.

"They came into being at a time when the waterfront activity was the core of the city."

"The area now needs to be brought up to date with contemporary needs for what should be one of the city's most beautiful areas."

"You can't expect a first-class hotel or business to locate cheek-by-jowl with an industry."

"The senior governments are very interested in the area and have approved this in the short time since it went through council on Aug. 11," said Mr. Greenhalgh.

"This is a good way of making the municipal dollar go four times as far, because we only have to contribute 25 cents of every dollar spent on urban renewal."

Mr. Greenhalgh said rehabilitation of the area would provide an additional source of revenue for the city.

At the present moment there is an assessment of 80 cents a square foot on what should be the prime waterfront area of the city.

Campbell Looks to Future

Municipal Borrowing Soon Region Affair

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell predicted Thursday it would soon be necessary for municipalities to go through the regional board for all borrowing.

He was reprimanding Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox for saying that regional borrowing could impair the credit standing of member municipalities.

"The future will show that it is desirable for municipalities to go through the region for all their financing," he said. "This is already true in the financial world back east."

"I don't usually answer the mischievous comments of the reeve of Oak Bay when it comes to municipal government," said Mr. Campbell.

"But in bringing into question credit ratings, he is just going too far, and I now feel I must correct it."

Over the past two years, said the minister, he had visited many financial houses in Eastern Canada, where he had been given a favourable reception. "The credit ratings of municipalities will not be impaired, period," he stated flatly.

"I went back myself this year to the Toronto area, and I am going again in November to the Montreal area to reinforce that these statements do not represent the facts."

According to recent reports, it is intended to divide Ontario into 28 districts and to use the regions for financing.

In B.C. legislation, the intention is to use the regional districts for financing, but use of the regional credit for financing would not impair in any way the credit of any member municipality.

The legislation, he said, is quite clear on that point.

As far as hospital borrowing is concerned, there can be no impairment of municipal credit, as the province itself is backing borrowing for that purpose.

"If a municipality or electoral area wishes to borrow, using the credit of the whole region, then the first call is on the municipality or electoral area for any recovery," said the minister.

"This was a financially mischievous statement and is unbecoming to the reeve of Oak Bay because he knows better," said the minister.

He said response to the new vehicle puts B.C. ahead of all other provinces as far as this kind of financing is concerned.

Mr. Campbell said the provincial government controls both municipal and regional borrowing through the Inspector of municipalities.

"It has been proved time and time again that the Inspector has specifically not given approval for municipal borrowings that were beyond the capacity of the municipality," said the minister.

"It will be proved that it will be desirable for municipalities to channel all financing through the region," concluded the minister.

Hearings Open Monday

A fact-finding panel will open hearings in Victoria Monday on the grievances of psychiatric nurses employed in B.C. government mental institutions.

Dr. Gordon Blott of Nanaimo, past president of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, will be the chairman when hearings commence at 10 a.m. Monday in the former B.C. Power Commission building.

Other members are Lloyd Whalen of Vancouver, western representative of the Teachers' Union, representing the B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association, and A. G. Richardson of Victoria, chief personnel officer of the Civil Service Commission, representing the B.C. government.

D. L. Wenham, executive secretary of the Psychiatric Nurses Association of B.C., will present a brief urging action on behalf of seven-hundred of demands.

Man of Year Predicts

Province on Eve of Greatest Era

Attorney-General Bonner and Victoria industrialist Harold Husband predicted Thursday that B.C. is on the eve of its greatest development.

Mr. Husband, named Man of the Year by the new Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said that discovery of oil offshore would trigger a fantastic boom along the west coast.

Mr. Bonner, guest speaker at the chamber's 104th annual meeting in the Empress Hotel, said B.C.'s population growth and hydro development have brought the province to maturity.

"Our time of great opportunity is now upon us," said Mr. Bonner before 165 dinner guests.

The meeting, entitled the amalgamation of chambers in Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Sooke into a Greater Victoria organization, will retain their autonomy but speak as one on regional matters.

Mr. Husband, a past president of the Victoria chamber and builder of the $10,000,000 REDCO 1300 offshore drilling rig sailing off off Tofino, received a standing ovation when named Man of the Year.

"If oil is discovered, you are going to see a change in the economic fabric of this province which you can hardly realize," said Mr. Husband in response.

Off Texas, in the Gulf of Mexico, are 5,000 drilling and pumping structures, he said. Along the coast of Texas and Louisiana are $2,000,000,000 worth of petroleum installations.

"One million dollars a day is spent in New Orleans for supplies," he said.

"That is what is going to happen on tidewater if oil is discovered here in merchantable quantity."

Mr. Bonner endorsed Mr. Husband's prediction. He added that completion of the Bennett Dam on the Peace River is "evidence of the new capacity of this province to do things for itself."

B.C.'s population growth — 4.1 per cent last year — was double the average rate in Canada, Mr. Bonner reported.

If the rate continues, B.C. will add about 400,000 people in five years, he declared. This would double the population of Vancouver added to today's 2,000,000 people.

"Last year, total personal income rose 14 per cent in this province," he said. "We are pushing forward at an enormous rate."

World population growth, lowering of tariffs under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, and B.C.'s new industrial capacity mean that "opportunity is beckoning to us," the attorney-general affirmed.

"The industrial era of the mass market is upon us," he said. B.C. now has a large enough population to support mass production.

A feature of the meeting was the honoring of five past presidents of the Victoria chamber who served during the 1930s.

They were R. W. Mayhew, R. H. B. Ker, Herbert Anson, W. T. Straith and Harold Husband. Mr. Anson, Mr. Straith and Mr. Husband accepted plaques; the other two were unable to be present.

The meeting also saw the induction of president W. H. Armstrong and vice-presidents Eric Mallett and Les Parkinson.

Comedy Line Defers Door

A "Keystone Cops" atmosphere could result if police had a special door giving direct access to Centennial Square, Ald. Robert Baird told Victoria council Thursday.

A request from the Centennial Square committee for $870 for the construction of the door to give access for police patrols or in response to reports of vandalism on readiness was deferred for traffic committee study.

Ald. Baird suggested regular patrols, because, he said, two or three policemen pouring through a doorway in response to a call would give them "a Keystone Cops" air.

Allowance Boosted For UBCM Trips

Victoria delegates to the Union of B.C. Municipalities will receive $25 a day, in addition to their motel and transportation expenses, it was decided Thursday.

Former rate was $15 daily, but city council voted the increase at its meeting, despite the objections of Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Proposing the increase, Ald. Cecil Parrott said it would bring delegates in line with those from other municipalities.

"I am against this," said the mayor. "Fifteen dollars a day is quite enough."

A Bloomin' Big Flower

Mrs. J. H. Scharfenberg of Cobble Hill has nurtured her dahlias this season throughout hot weather to more than seven feet tall. The dahlia Mrs.

Scharfenberg is pictured alongside is called Golden dew. The bloom on top is exactly seven feet three-and-three-quarters of an inch above the ground.

Newcastle Island

Stone Story Unfolded

NANAIMO—A man who was on Newcastle Island in 1931, the year a large stone monument was dedicated, has cleared up some of the mystery surrounding the roadside stone.

A picture of the monument appeared in last Saturday's edition of The Colonist.

Al Webster, of the First Aid Department at Tahsis Company's Gold River pulp mill, said Thursday that Newcastle Island was leased until 1930 by stone cutting contractors J. A. and C. H. McDonald who worked out of Vancouver.

The company cut stone for all stone-faced buildings in Vancouver Island and the lower B.C. Mainland being built in that era, Mr. Webster said.

The company also cut large pulp stones, drilled out of the Newcastle Island quarries. The stones were trimmed and sent to Powell River pulp mill for grinding pulp.

"At certain periods the work at the Vancouver yard became scarce and a group of us were sent to the island to quarry these stones. Near the end of the lease, the CPR took over the island for a summer picnic resort."

"We had to clean up the area, and while doing so, had to move stones such as that shown in The Colonist."

"This is simply a core cut out of a pulp stone, plus the rough outside slab which was cut from the side of the pulp stone."

"I think it was originally put into position by Clem Delmas, Frank Russell and Gordon Reilly as a gag."

"Then CPR, realizing the tourist interest among picnickers, had it cemented into place," he explained.

The stone was dedicated in 1931 by the then mayor of Nanaimo, Dr. G. A. B. Hall and officials of the railway.

Power Squadron Visits Island

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD — Neither wind, rain or mists discouraged the Victoria Power Squadron under the command of Vic Griffin when it made its annual voyage to the Gulf Island, landing at Solmar Resort on Salt Spring Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Young met members and left the visitors to take over the place. A large cabin with cooking facilities was at their disposal, so the planned cookout turned to a cook-in as the rain came down until late afternoon.

Sports and races brought joy to the scene especially when the husband-wife team went into the rowing races.

The husbands were blindfolded and at the first stroke of the oar, were completely at sea. The wives yelled "left" and "right" instead of Port or Starboard, with no thought to the fact that THEIR right was the other seaman's left.

There were collisions and unseemly manoeuvres rare in marine history.

The cruiser High Seas led the retreat after a happy day which ended in sunshine and clear weather.

Fulford Flooded With Old Junk

FULFORD — Residents along the waterfront feel they have a legitimate right to grumble at what they find washing up on the beaches in the harbor and bays.

"There is everything from hypodermic needles to paper cups," said Mrs. R. R. Alton, Isabella Point road.

The worst offenders are plastic bags — "The plastic gets sucked up into the engine or twists around the propeller."

Besides all this, say the disgruntled residents, the beach looks a mess with the litter coming in daily.

The relaxing joy of beachcombing, gathering driftwood, gleaming shells and pebbles, is lost when one finds the debris tangled among the sticks and stones.

"Some of the rubbish points to the B.C. Ferries — place mats, milk cartons, and other things."

Cardboard boxes come in a soggy mess, and the many cruises and yachts that cruise the waterways add their unwashed bits to the sea.

Sometimes passengers take rubbish to dump quietly over the side of the ferries, or off launches.

Forces of Regionalism New Threat for Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—Confederation is threatened by contemporary forces of regionalism that go beyond Canada's French East, Quebec's federal Liberals were told Friday.

Prof. Gerald Fortin, sociologist at Laval University, told a thinkers' conference sponsored by the Liberals that there is a worldwide trend to regionalism. He said the federal government should take care to act through the provinces in dealing with regional issues or risk destroying Canada. (See also Page 2).

"Regionalism is a new manifestation of democratic values and involves a re-assessment of all forms of government, including Canadian federalism. It is the affirmation of citizens' wish for collective control over their own affairs."

Nothing was less certain in this new context than Confederation, and it would have to be remade "even without the presence of the French Fact in Canada."

Survivors Want Share

ABERFAN (UPI)—A bitter and sad dispute broke into the open Friday over the wealth which poured into this tiny Welsh village following an October, 1966, coal tip disaster that killed 116 schoolchildren. The avalanche of coal waste that thundered on to the village schoolhouse was followed by an avalanche of money sent by sympathizers around the world.

Parents of the 64 children who survived the disaster said they, too, should get a share of the $4,700,000 disaster fund, much of which will be parcelled out to families who lost a child.

The parents said many of the surviving children were injured in the landslide and others suffered nervous disorders. Earlier this week, the secretary treasurer of the disaster fund, Gerald Davis announced that every family bereaved by the disaster would receive a $14,000 payment. "Frankly, I see little prospect that every child at school on the morning of the disaster being given substantial sums," Davis said. "Where would it end?"

More than $500,000 was paid out of the fund immediately after the disaster, some of it to bereaved families and some for emergency town spending. No decision has been taken on the more than $1,500,000 that will remain in the fund after all payments have been made. "We want to end the bickering in this town," said steelworker Michael Maybank, 29. "But we want a share of the money for our children."

Maybank said he thought the surviving children should receive an immediate payment of $5,000 with another $8,400 put in trust until they reach the age of 21.

Hurricane Terror

MARYLAND BELTED

Flood Peril

Women, Children Leave Skagway

SKAGWAY (AP)—Women and children were evacuated Friday as the weather bureau warned this historic southeast Alaska town to brace itself for the possibility of its worst flood in history.

Only a leaking earthen dike kept the wild, rain-swollen Skagway River from sweeping out of the narrow mountain valley and through the community of 660 persons.

Mayor Edward C. Hanousek said the river, swollen to near record levels by more than three inches of rain in the last 48 hours, was rising at the rate of seven inches an hour.

However, the rain later stopped and the rapid rise ceased. Water from the leaking dike flooded some basements early in the day and a bridge linking the town with the west bank of the river was washed out.

If the leaking dike should give way, officials said the force of a resulting flash flood could wash most of the town into Taiya Inlet, a glacier-gouged, fjord-like waterway linking the mountainous area with the North Pacific.

Hanousek said he ordered all women and children to take refuge in the Skagway School, a two-storey concrete structure on high ground, while men formed emergency crews to work on the dike.

The Haines Highway, linking southeast Alaska with the main Alaska Highway, was cut at four places by slides and high water. At least one bridge was reported out.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (UPI)

—The outer winds of Doria, a hurricane that defied the paths of all its known predecessors, slammed inland early today with winds gusting up to 120 miles an hour.

"It's coming right at us," police chief Jack Phillips said. The U.S. weather bureau said Doria was the first hurricane ever to move inland along the coast of the mid-Atlantic states. Thousands along the populous east coast fled before the storm that kicked up tides of four to six feet above normal and set off flooding.

Doria was one of two hurricanes to menace the coastline early today.

The other was Beulah, an established killer packing 115 miles an hour winds while heading toward Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

But Beulah, which already had claimed 18 lives in a sweep through the Leeward Islands and Haiti in the Caribbean, wasn't expected to hit any sooner than this afternoon.

Mayor Hugh Cropper ordered the evacuation of the entire population of Ocean City, a resort that swells to more than 100,000 during the tourist season but dwindles to but about 2,000 after Labor Day.

Phillips said about 70 per cent of the population had been evacuated by early today.

Nasser Deputy Kills Himself

Court for Cart

Mistaken Motorist Went Around Law

CLAREMONT, Calif. (UPI)—There was this little old lady in the three-wheel electric cart putting down the high speed San Bernardino freeway the wrong way.

And then there was John Law, California highway patrolman John E. Law, that is.

Law said he spotted the 81-year-old woman Thursday as she buzzed eastbound along the narrow centre divider of the westbound freeway lanes.

Its operator, Mrs. Ella Docker of Claremont, calmly put out her left arm, signalled for a turn and detoured around the squad car blocking her path.

The amazed patrolman took off after the cart on foot and finally succeeded in halting it, but not before one minor accident occurred as motorists tried to dodge the cart.

Law said the elderly woman told him she was hurrying to a doctor's and had turned onto the freeway by mistake.

Law said he didn't know if she made it to her doctor's appointment but now she has another appointment—in municipal court on a citation charging her with driving in the wrong lanes of a freeway and with illegally operating an electric cart on the freeway.

Search Stepped Up For Nanaimo Boat

NANAIMO — The RCMP Rescue Co-ordination Centre are standing by until dawn this morning, when boats and aircraft will join the search.

CAIRO (UPI) — Former Egyptian vice-president Abdul Hakim Amer committed suicide by poison rather than face questioning about an alleged army plot against President Nasser. It was officially announced here Friday.

The 48-year-old former deputy commander of Egyptian armed forces, disgraced after the Arab war with Israel, had been under house arrest for alleged complicity in the plot.

An official spokesman said Amer swallowed "a quantity of poisonous narcotic matter" when army officers came to his house Wednesday to "invite him to attend the investigation" of the alleged plot.

He was rushed to a hospital where his condition began to improve, but he took another fatal dose of poison which he had apparently brought with him, the spokesman said.

Amer had been Nasser's friend since boyhood, and he was the president's heir-apparent under the Egyptian constitution.

Radio Cairo said the commander in chief and chief of staff of the armed forces went to Amer's house to question him about the plot Wednesday. It said Amer excused himself and went into the bathroom, where he was the president's heir-apparent under the Egyptian constitution.

Amer was rushed to a hospital, his stomach was pumped out and his condition improved Thursday, the radio said. Then he suffered a sudden relapse and died after visiting the bathroom, where he had evidently taken more pills, according to a medical examination.

He Turned 89 Heads

There was a beefed-up traffic problem this week on U.S. Highway 61, south of Vicksburg, Miss., when truck loaded with 89 head of cattle failed to make turn and landed on its side. Passersby were pressed into service and helped drive the cattle to safety. Driver of the truck, Virgil Allen Copus of Mountain View, Okla., was unhurt in the mishap.—(AP)
